the President's Message Was Received in Congress.

THE REED IN THE ROLE OF CLOWN, the Speaker to Adjourn Out of Respect for the Dead-The Wat-son Investigation.

Washington, December 6 .- (Special.)president's message sent to congress day met with hearty approval from the ans of both houses. Many of them have been afraid that he would not be sufficiently vigorous and to them message was a pleasant surprise. The rats look upon it as an utterance the same character as Tom Reed's ng address to the house when the oblican majority in the house of repatives, two years ago, had been attered to the four winds. The gist of e message is in the first part, in which deals with the tariff question and bemes very sarcastic. He directly tells democrats to go ahead and try your me now, the people believe it a good ee, because they voted for you, but they will find that it will destroy the material prests of the country. He does not seede from the republican position in hor of a protective tariff a whit, but outs the democrats to try their scheme order to demonstrate the superiority d his position. He grows facetious in ding that the whole subject of will revision be left to the incoming adtration and says he only regrets that work must be delayed for at at three months. In other words, Mr. rison attempts to adopt the style of m Reed. Mr. Harrison is a good writer the message suits the republicans exdy, while it affords amusement to the crats. There is nothing in it of n musual nature. He indulges in saram about the tariff and discusses other ters in a plain matter of fact way. he members of the house were furnishd with a printed copy of the president's esige, and as a consequence there was attention paid to the clerk while he as reading the long and dry message. mber glanced over his copy and he they had gotten the substance from It tean circulating around the hall to the facetious part of it, dealing in the tariff question. It seemed to the Tom Reed as a sort of obituary peage, and when the clerk had about of concluded he dragged his great body by down to the speaker's desk, where members had gathered, about to Approaching Speaker Crisp, the big hvate despatches from California, ans and Wyoming, received by the cans here, claim that the republicwill elect senators from all three of states which the democrats have ned. Senator Paddock, of Nebraska, ses confident that he will be re-elected, the Kansas people here think it ble that republican senators will decided from that state. The information was given out from the republican is yesterday that they would pass bills at this session admitting New dee and Arizona, but it might have a bluff to lead the democrats to the that they would not attempt to re the senators in those western where the legislatures are about divided. He says he suppose it will be unpopular, but it will add $60,000,000 to the revenue and it is a tax that nobody feels and that nobody complained of before it was abolished.

Other representatives of the sugar districts, however, do not agree with Mr. Logan and it is probable that there will be quite a division among the democrats themselves, when the question of a change being made in the present sugar schedule is raised.

Ready to Report.

Mr. Boatner, of Louisiana, chairman of the special committee investigating Tom Watson's charges of drumkness in the house, returned to Washington today. Mr. Boatner says he will call the special committee together within a few days and see what its members desire to do in regard to the remembers desire to do in regard to the re-port submitted to the house the last day of

The report states that Mr. Watson's charges were false and it leaves the matter to the house to decide what shall be done to Mr. Watson for making such false charges. Of course, some action must be taken. There are those who are anxious to expel Mr. Watson, and if such a motion was made, it would undoubtedly carry. But it is probable that conservative advice will prevail and Watson will simply be Crisp to Be an Honored Guest.

Speaker Crisp today accepted an invitation to attend the reform club dinner, in New York on Saturday night. Several other members of congress will go over with him and he is regarded. him and he is expected to deliver one of the speeches of the evening.

Senator Gordon Senator and Mrs. Gordon have returned to their apartment on Vermont avenue, but will remain there but a short time. Senator Gordon's health, which has not senator coroons neath, which has hot been good for some years past, is improving, and in order that he may continue to improve he has decided to move in the country somewhere near Washingtop. By doing so he will escape the hundreds of callers who remain late in the evening, and can obtain a much needed rest. He will without the transfer of the coroon either move out to Tennallytown or to some one of the many little villages on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, within a few miles of Washington.

Appropriations for Georgia In the estimates furnished by the house by the secretary of the treasury today for appropriations for the next year are these Georgia items: To continue the work on the Savannah custom house, $100,000; to establish a light near the entrance of St. Catharine's sound, $20,000; for additions range lights at Doboy sound, $1,500.

To Keep Cholera Out. Congress at this session will probably take some action to prevent cholera in the United State next year.

Senator Chandler, chairman of the committee of immigration, has prepared a bill for prohibiting immigration into the United States during the year 1893. The idea seems to be a popular one and it is probable that a bill of this character will be adopted.

IN THE TWO HOUSES

The Reading of the Message Occupies Nearly All the Time. The Heading of the Message Occupies Nearly All the Time.

Washington, December 6.—The reading of the message, presentation of petitions and introduction of bills and joint resolutions occupied the whole session of the senate. The vice president established what was thought a new departure by laying before the senate certificates, as far as received, from several states as to the choice of presidential electors by those states. It is anticipated that the fight on the anti-option bill will be early developed in the shape of petitions for and against that measure, but before the bill could be called up, as unfinished busines of the last session, Mr. Sherman secured an executive session at which the president's recess nominations were referred to the appropriate committees. Immediately thereafter the senate adjourned.

The attendance of members of the house was ate adjourned.

The attendance of members of the house was about the same as yesterday. Several absentees arrived, among fhem Bourke Cockran, Tammany's leader and orator. The session was devoted to hearing the message. When the reading concluded, Mr. Outhwaite of Ohio, annouved the death of his late colleague, Mr. Warwick, and the house adjourned.

Philadelphia Manufacturers Visit Mr. Cleveland-Preparations for Departure

Lakewood, N. J., December 6.-This afernoon President George H. Earle, of the Pennsylvania Warehousing of the Philadelphia Gurantee Company, who had com here by a special train from Philadelphia, called upon Mr. Cleveland and had a lengthy interview, after which he returned to Philadelphia. Mr. Cleveland said the visit was unpolitical. President-elect Cleveland remained at me all the afternoon attending to accumi lated mail. In the evening several of the cottagers called. Mr. Cleveland expects to leave on Thursday for New York with Mrs. Cleveland and Ruth, Mrs. Cleveland going on to Buffalo, where she will be the guest of her mother, Mrs. Perrine.

SENATOR HILL WON'T TALK,

But It Is Said He Has Had a Good Offer from the Equitable Life Insurance Company.

New York, December 6.—Senator David B. Hill was reported last night to have en tendered the position of general counse to the Equitable Life Assurance Company The prevailing opinion among insurance men was that he would accept. The senator is understood to be considering the matter understood to be considering the matter favorably. The position pays $25,000 a year. A Washington dispatch says an attempt was made last night to interview Senator Hill but he declined to talk.

President Hyde, of the Equitable Life Insurance Company, denies the report that that corporation has offered Senator Hill a salary of $25,000 to become its counsel.

Nicaragua Canal.

Washington, December 6.—The vice president laid before the senate the report of the Nicaragua Canal Company. Of the capital stock 10,145 shares have been subscribed for and $10,014.50 paid thereon; receipts from other sources amount to $39,290.70; expenditures have been $815,049 cash and 31,990 shares of the capital stock of the par value of $3,199,000. Work on the canal began June 3, 1889. Nineteen miles of the route have been cleared; sixty miles of telegraph line has been erected; a telephone system established; six miles of railroad constructed through swamps to enable the contractors to Nicaragua Canal.

Sale of Washington Relics Philadelphia. December 6.—One of the most important sales of Washington relics in years occurred here today. The relics belonged to the estate of the late J. C. McGuire, of Washington, and Included a large proportion of the correspondence between Washington and Madison, notably a letter written to Madison in 1792, containing the outline of the draft of a proposed farewell address, written when Washington entertained the idea of declining renomination for the presidency. It was sold for $1.325 to an agent who declined to state for whom the document was bought.

Washington, December 6.—The Davenport investigating committee has decided to take no action on the petition of Chief Supervisor Davenport asking a hearing by congress in lefense of the election law.

PANIC IN A SCHOOL.

The Cry of "Earthquakel!" Stampedes the Children

IN BENNETT SCHOOL IN CHARLESTON

A General Rush Is Made for the Exits,

AND MANY OF THE LITTLE ONES HURT,

But None Seriously-Citizens Hurry to the Scene of Excitement - Narrow Escape of the Children.

Charleston, S. C., December 6.-(Special.)-The old Earthquake City had an excitement today caused by a panic in one of the public schools. The incident occurred in the main room of the Bennett school, one of the largest public school buildings in the city. Shortly after the noon recess while the pupils were in the main room one of them, a little girl, was seized with a convulsion; there was a quick gathering around her of the teachers. The other pupils became excited, some one shouted "earthquake!" and then all discipline was at an end. The panic spread through the building and despite the efforts of the teachers there was a wild stampede for the exits. Children were thrown down, trampled upon and books and slates and clothing torn and scattered around in all directons A great shrick was heard and the news quickly spreading throughout the city and soon brought crowds of friends and parents to the scene. The exits from the building are ample, however, and very few moments the 1,000 or more pupils were on the streets.

A number of the children were slightly bruised, but no serious casualties occur red. The cry of earthquake was a false alarm, no shock having occurred here in years. A similar stampede to this happened a year ago in the Simonton school, which has 1,500 colored pupils. That was caused, however, by the presence of a negro voodoo doctor, who said he was a cannibal, and whose peculiar appearance frightened the children into a panic.

PUBLIC LEDGER BURNED OUT.

arge Conflageration in Philadelphia - A Beautiful Building Badly Damaged. Philadelphia, December 6.-The Public Ledger building, a massive six-story, brownfront structure on the southwest corner of Sixth and Chestnut streets and runner of Sixth and Chestnut streets and run-ning through to Sanson street, was dam-aged by fire tought to the smount of $200,-000, of which $150,000 was sustained by The Ledger and $50,000 by the tenants. The Ledger insurance aggregates $240,000 -$160,000 on the building and $80,000 on the contents. The other occupants are be-lieved to be fully insured. The collection of curios and plate in the office of Mr. Childs, The Ledger's owner and publisher, inestimable in value was saved. Damage to building, $100,000. About half the building was gutted by fire and water. The flames were confined to the fourth floor and all

About 5 o'clock this afternoon, when the fire was discovered in the old courthouse on he southeast corner of Sixth and Chestnut streets, directly opposite The Ledger building, a still alarm was sounded. The flame were soon extinguished. Mr. Childs watched the work of the firemen and after the A Second Alarm.

While a number of The Ledger's employes in the business offices, were talking of the courthouse fire at 5:40 o'clock Miss Ewing, a clerk, saw smoke coming through crevices publication office and gave an alarm. Clerks and others hurriedly applied chemical extinguishers, and in a few minutes the fire was subdued, and apparently extinguished. Soon, however, smoke was again seen and this time the flames leaped by the freight elevator shaft and rushed into the new composing room occupying the fifth and sixth floors. The first had mysteriously started in the basement of No. 604 Chest-nut street, which is a part of The Ledger property, and occupied by The Standard typewriter exchange. There was no rub bish in the cellar and there is no plausible theory as to its origin. It is thought how ever, it was started by careless workmen A general alarm was sounded.

Flight of the Printers.

The flames soon enveloped the composin room. The compositors to the number of 140, hurriedly retreated down stairs and escaped safely. Soon after the fire started there was a sharp explosion, the cause of which is unknown, and Business Manager Joel Cook and a number of the clerks were forced to the street by the concus The facilities of every printing office in the city were offered to Mr. Childs, and after William M. Singerly, president of The Record Publishing Company, had personally tendered the use of his plant, the offer was accepted, and tomorrow, and till further arrangements, The Ledger will be issued from The Record office.

The Ledger compositors are now at work in the emergency composing room, No. 415 Locust street, and editors and reporters utilize the board of trade rooms on fourth floor of the Drexel building Fifth and Chestnut streets.

Mr. Childs and A. J. Drexel were witnesses of the fire and personally noted the efficiency of the fire department. They expressed their appreciation by telling Director Butler, of the department of public safety, that a check for $5,000 will be sent him tomorrow to be used at his discret for the benefit of the firemen.

BYRNES AGAINST PARKHURST.

Police Superintendent Makes Grave Charges Against the Clergyman. New York, December 6.—Superintend-t Byrnes tonight gave an outline of an tack upon Rev. Charles H. Parkhurst in tich he makes the direct charlesting

"I am preparing a series of facts, which I have not yet completed, in relation to the numerous accusations and statements which Dr. Parkhurst has made against the police department of this city. I have refrained from attacking the gentleman because he is a clergyman. These accusations have been made up without evidence to support them and I do not think he believes them himself. The whole thing was made up by him and by certain influential members of his congregation, and originated in a divorce sult which occurred in this city ten years ago. The complainant in the divorce suit case was a young woman belonging to his congregation, who sought a divorce from her husband. At that time, Parkhurst and certain members of his congregation, tried to get a certain police officer to testify to her husband. At that time, Parkhuts and certain members of his congregation, tried to get a certain police officer to testify to certain facts regarding the misdoings of the woman's husband, but the police officer refused to swear to such facts. Fremantle, deputy master of the English mint, declared himself ready to support any reasonable measure to solve the sliver problem effectively. Sir William Houlds, of the British delegation, a bimetallist, announced that he had prepared a fresh proposal to be presented immediately. claiming to await my presence at that place in order to settle grievances, said to exist among their number, have sent out the following telegram: 'Savannah, Ga., December 5.—serious troubled is pending between the operators and the Central railroad of Georgia; will culminate in a few days. all telegraphers remain away and accept no position until settlement is effected. (Signed) The Committee.' This message is a threat to me and the officers of the company that it is expected to have a strike on the system and is intended to prevent the company employing agents and oper ators to carry on the work of the company This action on the part of the operators improper in so far as they have anticipated the decision to be arrived at and as it expresses their desire to interfere with the work of the company before a strike has been ordered by their organization. Should the object for which this telegram was sent out be consummated, it might result in un told loss of life and property. This action was taken by the committee although they profess to wish to have an amicable settle ment of the laimed differences. They have thus used the wires and employes of the Central railroad to stir up insubordination and dissatisfaction.

"In view of these facts I have directed every superintendent on whose division any of this committee may have been employed to discharge them at once for the reasons that they have been and now are absen-from their positions without leave and be cause they are attempting to stir up strife in the minds of employees who probably do not recognize the gravity of the trouble which is attempted.

"The agitation which has been worked up on the Central railroad within the last month by the order of Railway Telegraphers has resulted in at least one disastrous wreck and if they are permitted to neglect their duties for the purposes of agitntion it is likely to have more serious results. Some four weeks ago, a head collision occurred on the Chattanooga, Rome and Columbus railroad and was brought about, I believe, by the agitation which was then being fermented over the system among the operators. Dispatcher McLaughlin at Griffin was to blame for the collision and he was at that time, and has since been, a member of that 'committee,' and I have no doubt that the fact of his mind being filled with his duties as an agitator resulted in his neglecting his work and forgetting the trains that he had in his charge. The result was a head end collision, which may cost the company $20,000 and has maimed several men for life. Superintendent Wadley will arrive in the city tomorrow morning and he will be seen by the firemen and engineers immediately. Chief Sargent, of the firemen's orders, will not, in all probability, come to Savannah, as Deputy Chief Hanahan has full power to represent him with the Central railroad. It is said that one of the new require ments in the firemen's and engineer's contracts will be that in the event of a collapse of the system their pay shall be protected. The two orders learned a lesson when the twenty-seven days pay and it required the services of Judge Speer for them to get

This arternoon Chief Arthur was seen by a Constitution correspondent.

"I have no desire to prejudge Mr. Wadley or any of his actions," said he. "He has infromed the chairman of the committee that he will be here tomorrow morning. Until then I can only speak from the standpoint of what I am informed are the facts in the case. I have been told that Mr. point of what I am informed are the facts in the case. I have been told that Mr. Wadley declines to enter into negotiations with the men, and to make a contract under which they will work during the year. If this is true and Mr. Wadley insists on adhering to this stand, why of course there cannot fail to be trouble. Our organization is not one for strikes. It was not organized for that purpose and is not conducted to that end. Fair play all around is its motto. Just treatment is all that is desired. Every one of the engineers in the employ of the Central system who is eligible, is a member of the brotherhood. There are about one hundred and fifty it all. A proper contract with them prevents friction for an entire year. Roads all over the country have found it to their advantage to make con-tracts with their engineers. Why Mr. Wad-ley should at this late hour take a stand in opposition to what the experience of some of the greatest railroad managers in the country, has demonstrated to be the most satisfactory methods of dealing with engi-neers for all concerned, I cannot under-stand. We are opposed to trouble of any kind and avoid it whenever possible. At the same time we do not submit to a wrong in order to prevent trouble. Workmen of all classes have learned the great value of organizations, and they will never surren-der it and return to the methods of years ago when by treating with immense cor-porations as individuals, they were as com-pletely within their power as it is possible

"I trust that there will be no occa any trouble and that it will be found that Mr. Wadley has been misunderstood and not reported correctly. While we must insist on having a contract that will be a protection to the men and in which all the essential points of the old contract are cov-ered, we have no desire and no intention to act otherwise than in the most friendly and courteous manner towards all persons in authority. The brotherbood is not a bull-dozing institution and has no desire to pose in that light. Tomorrow at this time we will be better able to predict the result.

"We will insist on the priority rule in force under the old contract," said he. "That is, that the men who have been longest with roads and are competent, shall be given the preference of runs. This rule was made to prevent favoritism. It is in work in preventing dissensions."

The men all seem to place utmost confidence in Chief Authur's ability to manage their affairs satisfactory for them. Mr. Arthur said that the several organizations are working independently although they are common bonds of sympathy.

The Marriage of Mr. Birney and Mrs. White Yesterday.

A LOVE FEAST AT MRS. CLARKE'S,

And Other Society Events-Gossip Abou People You Know Hereland Through Georgia.

The wedding which united Mr. Theodore Birney and Mrs. Alice Josephine White was a very beautiful and impressive one. The ceremony was performed at the Church of Our Father at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon and witnessed by a large and fashionable audience.

The dignified and artistic little sanctuary was darkened and made bright by many lights and the decorations of tall palms and graceful ferns arranged about the altar added greatly to the loveliness of the picture.

The bride and groom and their attendants were preceded by a party of their intimate friends, who grouped themselves about the chancel and stood during the ceremony. Miss Grace McClellan, the sister of the bride, acted as maid of honor and Mr. George H. Crafts was best man, the pair entering the church together. Miss McClellan wore a lovely gown of pale blue silk mull over silk and carried La France

The ceremony was eloquently performed by the Rev. Mr. Cole, after which the wed-ding party and a number of invited guests drove to the handsome home of the bride on Spring street where an elegant reception was given from the hours of 5 o'clock to 8 o'clock.

Here the house was beautifully adorned with flowers and made radiant by many lights and delicious refreshments were served during the evening. At 9 o'clock the happy pair left for their wedding journey to Florida, where they will spend their honeymoon.

Matrimonial and Literary.

Matrimoulal and Literary.

Miss Maude Craig entertained the Matrimonial and Literary Club last evening, at her home on Capito' avenue. Miss Craig is thoroughly charming in her home and the Matrimonial and Literary Club always looks forward to the time when it shall meet at ner house. At the last meeting, Mr. Elijah Brown read a very interesting paper on "Why is it that woman's mind is not capable of grasping questions of political economy and science." And last night Miss Luttie Hook read a paper discussing the fallacy of Mr. Brown's argument. Miss Marian Hillyer also read an interesting paper. Miss Adeline Adair gave a beautiful vocal selection, which brought out the clear sweet tones of her voice admirably. Miss Nettle Strickler also rendered an exquisite instrumental solo.

After the regular programme had been gone through with, the secretary asked very informally and seriously if he was to have the pleasure of amouncing any engagements; but as yet his pleasure was to be confined to announcing the engagement of the club with the young lady at whose house it will meet next time. Miss Craig then opened the dicussion of Tennyson, with an exceedingly interesting paper. As a whole, the evening was a thoroughly enjoyable one and each meeting of this club grows in interest.

His brilliant playing of the General Festival march—Durham, gave unbounded satisfacuon. This is a very difficult piece, both for manuals and pedals, and Mr. O'Donnelly gave it faultlessly.

In charming contrast to the march was the arrangement, Last Rose of Summer, by Dudley Buck. This beautiful number at once took the audience. It is the prettlest piece that Mr. O'Donnelly has ever played at any of his recitals. The variations are exquisite, especially the one with the flute stop, and the grand climax, which was played in a magterly manner.

"L'arlesienne," by Bizet, a most beautiful orchestral work, was charmingly adapted and played by Mr. O'Donnelly.

Mr. R. S. Pigott gave two numbers in a most thoroughly delightful and artistic manner. He has a pure baritone voice of great beauty and strength. He sings without any effort whatever and is an artist of the highest type. The first number, "For all Eternity," by Mascheroni, with violin obligato, was a gem. This was given with a finish and expression that has seldom been heard in Atlanta. Mr. Pigott should feel proud of the brilliant success he scored in this, his first appearance in concert in Atlanta.

Holiday Gifts. As once more the world prepares to celebrate the holiday of the risen Lord, the thought in every heart is, "What shall we give?" The custom of giving at the Christmas-tide is as old as Christianity itself, dating back to that wondrous night when the morning stars sang together and the wise men from the east brought their rich gifts to lay at the feet of the infant Saviour.

rich gifts to lay at the feet of the infant Saviour.

The spoiled darling of fortune sits "in her boudon fair, in the firelight and the rose-filled air," and dreams idly of the luxuries, the beautiful surprises that await her on the Christmas morn, the wan child of poverty and want counts wistfully her scanty savings, praying hopefully that the season of rejoicing may bring some joy to her. All save the most hardened feel a quickened pleasure that nothing else brings, as this season of the year approaches.

The jewelry stores are always crowded with eager seekers for dainty beautiful gifts. Here are tokens for all, the stately matron, the pompous head of the family, the full blown beauty, the rose bud girl, the elegant young man, the child, eager, full of joy for all the Christmas brings.

If there is any difficulty at all if is to select from articles so numerous and beautiful what you wish.

For women the array is bewildering. There are hairpins than which no royal princess ever had more beautiful ones, hairpins jeweled, enameled, adorned in various ways.

What Was Developed at the Police Station Yesterday.

NEWS OF MRS. NORRIS'S DEATH

Strange Young Man, of Wandering Mind, Found at the Kimball House. Other Items at the Station.

Chief Connolly yesterday received indirect information that Mrs. Mary Narris, who was sent to the asylum during the past summer, was dead. The information the chief received came in Teleter from a leady of Telephone in which form Mrs. lady at Tallapoosa, in which fown Mrs. Norris formerly lived.

The letter stated that Mrs. Norris died soon after being admitted to the asylum, and the lady wrote inquiring about little Johnnie Norris. She said that when Mrs. Norris left Tallapoosa last spring she left some furniture and other property, which was yet undisposed of. The lady suggested that now, as Mrs. Norris was dead, that the furniture be sold and the proceeds be turned over to little Johns Norris turned over to little Johnnie Norris.

The little boy is now living happily in Atlanta with a family by whom he was adopted. He knows nothing of his mother's death. The case of Mrs. Norris will be readily recalled by Atlantians. She came to Atlanta homeless and brooding over her griefs she went mad. Her condition was pitiful, but worse still was the condition of her little seven-year-old sou. He was finally adopted into a good family through the efforts of Captain J. W. English.

Who Is This Young Mau

Last night a well dressed young man, of respectable appearance, created quite a sensation in the corridor of the Rumball house by acting in a strange manner. He stood in the lobby, and talked at random in a loud votee. He made disconnected remarks about horses and racing, leaving the impression upon those who heard him that he was a jockey. He was not at all violent, but created quite a scene, and Special Officer Martin took him in charge and carried him to the police's station. There the young man said his name was Edicule Rogers, and that, he was a jockey, and had ridden at Columbia, S. C., and at Nashville, Tenn. He talked in a' rambling way, however, and the officers could get no connected statement from him. He said he had been at work for Captain Ed Cox. The officers thought he was not crazy, but only threatened with sickness. He said he was wick.

Captain Thompson had the young man locked up to await developments. Does any one know him? He is about twenty-four years old, nice-looking, and pretty well dressed. He has light hair, a sandy mustache and is small in stature.

They were Fined.

The two men who created something of a sensation Monday by refusing to be carried to the police station by a negro, were tried before Recorder Calhoun yesterday afternoon. Several witnesses were examined and they justified the action of the negro in what he did. The two men were fined $5 and costs each.

Chief of Police Connolly approves Officer Verner's action in summoning the negro to help him, and he said yesterday that no action will be taken against the officer. They Were Fined.

that no action will be taken against the officer.

Officer Verner thinks that injustice was done him by what appeared in The Constitution of yesterday, as he says the case was a very urgent one, and he had to call the first help he could get. Mr. Camp, the well known merchant, saw the affair and following them to the station house he demanded that a case be made against the negro. Officer Verner replied, as he says, that no case would be made against the negro, Calhoun.

A great deal of excitement was created over the affair when it occurred, which Officer Verner says would not have been if the people had understood the urgency of the case.

A Pitiful Case.

Yesterday afternoon a widow called at Chief Councily's office and told a pathetic story of her condition. She said she had a family of eight children and hadn't a mouthful to eat. She said she had cooked the last morsel of food she had for breakfast yesterday morning. Her eldest child, a little Tirl, who had been at work at the cotton factory, had had her finger cut off and had to stop work. She was in great distress and asked Chief Connoily to lielp her. Speaking of the crae (ast night Captain Thompson said: "This is certainly a A Pitiful Case. This is certainly a

As Mr Pat H. Moore, one of the deputies on Major A. G. We esteem him as a moral, upright, temperate, educated and courteous Irish gentleman and an houest democrat.

A Story Which Shows That He Is a Great Griffin, Ga., December 6.—(Special.)—Georgia mule is a great institution, and all its uses will never be discovered till time comes to an end. Its last act is as a detection of this property and a destroyer of all cottens.

This particular mule, name unknown, This particular mule, name unknown, is the property of a negro named Gus Mc-Lendon, at Concord. A few nights since, about 9 o'clock, he and a friend named Jim Strickland were driving it past the church in that peaceful village when it kicked up its hind heels, threw out the bale of cotton in the wagon and rau away. It was caught and persuaded to bring in the cotton to Griffin, where it was weighed at Cole's warehouse and sold to Herring Bros for $51. But, after the racket in Concord, Gus concluded to have nothing more to do with the transaction, so Jim paid up a few debts and started home with a load of furniture. On the way home the mule ran away again, throwing out the furniture and breaking it up.

In the meantime, people who had been called to the scene the first runaway investigated the matter and found that neither Gus nor Jim had any cotton belonging to them in a lawful way. The natural conclusion was that something was wrong, so G. W. Strickland came to town Saturday evening and found the cotton. But on his return, after having the negro arrested, he could find nobody who had missed a bale. There were about two hundred bales at the gin, but there was none there that was gin, but there was none there that was missing. However, they took away $10 that Jim Strickland had left and turned him loose on bond, and now they are look-ing for the man that was robbed. It is him loose on bond, and now they are look-ing for the man that was robbed. It is thought that the cotton came from Meri-wether county. Who is there over there that has missed a bale of cotton and don't know it?

A new man can be made, out of one that's "used-up," bilious and dyspeptic. It's done by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It starts the torpid liver into healthful action, purifies and enriches the blood, cleanses, repairs, and strengthens the system, and restores health and vigor. As an appetizing, restorative tonic, it sets at work all the processes of digestion and nutrition, and builds up flesh and strength. It's the only Blood and Liver Remedy that's guaranteed, in every case, to benefit or cure. If it doesn't do all that's claimed for it, the money is promptly refunded. But it keeps its promises—that's the reason it can be sold in this way.

You only pay for the good you get.
"Discovery" strengthens Weak Lungs, and cures Spitting of Blood, Shortness of Breath, Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, and kindred affections. Don't be fooled into taking something else, said to be "just as good," that the dealer may make a larger profit. There's nothing at all like the "Discovery."

(Communicated.) The quiet, conservative business men who don't want to take sides with either, Captain Morrow or Mr. Barnes in their bitter personal fight for sheriff will go to the polls today and vote for Major A. G. Howard.

(Communicated.) Who is your choice for tax receiver? You will be on the winning side if you vote for the present en-cumbents, T. M. Armistead and John L. Gatins. (Communicated.)

Donahoe is on the Barnes ticket. His friends will vote for Barnes. (Communicated.)

The quiet, conservative business men who don't want to take sides with either Captain Morrow or Mr. Barnes in their bitter personal fight (Communicated.)

Fulton county never had a better tax receiver than M. Armistead. should be re-elected by a rousing vote with his assistant, Mr. John L. Gatins.

A. J. WEST & CO.,

Real Estate, 16 Pryor St., Kimball House. CHICAGO HAS DOUBLED its population in four years. Is it not reasonable to think that Atlanta will do the same thing in eight years? This being about as certain as anything the future promises, then it is the duty of all who can to call at once and see us about several special bargains we have in real estate, the following being a sample: LOT 100x240, corner Juniper and Elighth sts., one block from Peachtree, good for large home or will make four lots; Juniper same width as Peachtree, $3,000.

108 1-2x420, from W. Peachtree to Center sts.; beigian block and curbing now down; this is immediately in front of Professor H. H. Smith's; is perhaps the finest view and prettlest location in Fulton county-$10,000.

10 ACRES, ear city limits, 200 yards of electric cars and well located-$7,000.

8 ACRES, 21-2 miles from carshed, on an elevation, streets on three sides, magnificent view of city, close to electric line and first-class surroundings-$5,500.

WE ARE now getting ready to send out all over the United States a large quantity of advertising matter in regard to Atlanta and the surrounding country. If you wish your property sold, let us have particulars and prices at once, so as to begin with the new year. We have the best money arrangements for making loans.

A. J. WEST & CO.

TO TAKE STOCK.

ARE CETTING READY

to round up the year's work, and in order to facilitate the work and to reduce the quantity of goods on hand they will commence now and continue until January 1st to make special prices to clear out of the way every possible article that can be sold, and on many things such as Novelty Suits and Funcy Suitings, Cloaks, Jackets, Caps, readymade Suits, Underwear, etc., including every odd and short length in the house, and men's Shoes, prices will be no object, AS THEY MUST GO. Prices will be made low enough to clear them out. In fact, the whole stock in every department must be reduced and at once. In Carpets, Draperies and Rugs call for odds and short; lengths you will buy.

IN FURNITURE trade has never been so good and there never was such a variety as is now on the floor. The quantity is large, and in order to reduce it prices to clear out and thin down will be made. IT WILL PAY EVERYBODY who needs turniture or who desire to make a suitable present to attend this clearance sale, examine quality of goods and compare prices. Do this at once and get choice of goods.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

A Long and Exhaustive Review of the Nation's Affairs.

THE TARIFF AND THE ELECTION BILL

A Strong Partisan Review of the Protection Policy-The Foreign Relations-The Monetary Issue-Special Legislation Recommended.

The annual message of the president to congress, which was sent in yesterday, is a careful and elaborately prepared document of nearly 20,000 words. The showing made of the commercial and industrial condition of the country is most encouraging. Aside from some slight disturbances the manufacturing and commercial interests are shown to be in a condition of prosperity which compares favorably with any past conditions of these interests.

The increase in the establishment of mills of cotton, linen, silk, wool, iron and steel and other manufacturies is dwelt on with peculiar emphasis; th emoney proposed the tin manufactory is given a prominence, tin manufactory is given a prominence which may be directly attributed to a partisan support of the McKinley bill; and the acknowledged depression of the agricultural classes and interests is frankly admitted, but is attributed in a specious argument to the umfavorable incident of agriculture that the farmer cannot produce upon orders, and is in ignorance of the conditions of supply and demand which will be in operation at the time that he markets his crop. The report of Labor Commissioner Peck, of New York, is referred to incidentally, but in a way which its part in the last campaign gives political significance. The tariff question is thoroughly reviewed in figures and selected conclusions rather than by di-rect argument, and the result of the last rect argument, and the result of the last election is referred to as having necessarily introduced a new policy.

All foreign relations are reported as being amicable and friendly and there is no international question to trouble the secretary of state's office except the still pending trouble of the seal and Canadian fisheries. Some unimportant complications with Spain over the treatment of American citizens, alleged infringements on the rights of Liberia and some disturbance caused by the treatment of Americans in Asia Minor. All of these are but the necessary incidental of these are but the necessary incidental complications of the state department which time will easily adjust. On the other hand the satisfactory adjustment of the troubles with Chile and Italy are reported. Government aid for the Nicaragua canal is earnestly recommended.

with Chile and Italy are reported. Government aid for the Nicaragua canal is earnestly recommended.

The financial question is touched on lightly. Reference is made to the monetary conference now in session, and pending its decision the president witholds his opinion, though he goes so far as to commit himself to the belief in a more liberal use of silver if it be in accord with a similar movement by the nations of Europe. The disposition of the surplus is excused on the ground that it is best in the hands of the people, and the vacuity of the treasury is converted by a species of logic into a virtue. The army is commended to the care of congress. Modern improvements are recommended and the smallness of its numbers is urged as an additional necessity for its thorough efficiency. With the astuteness of a man of experience in the art of war he recognizes that the term of frontier no longer means a few scattered posts on the Indian border. The coasts of the two oceans and the Mexican and Canadian lines are the real and permanent frontier to the control of the two processing the property of the coasts of the two oceans and the Mexican and Canadian lines are the real and permanent from the army the army the two oceans and the Mexican and Canadian lines are the real and permanent frontiers of the republic and on them the army should be posted at strategic positions.

By a singular species of argument the credit of the new navy is transferred to the present administration. The message states that the administration found three modern ships at its disposal and at the expiration of less than four years finds nineteen, with others in progress of construction, and the fact is studiously ignored that practically the navy as it stands is the result and work of the former democratic administration. But with words that are free from the shadow of partisanship the continued progress of the restoring of the navy is urged on congress as a measure beyond the range of party lines and dear alike to all.

The reports of the secretaries of the various departments are more or less necessary tedious reviews of the work of the year. Again attention is called to the fatality among railway employes and congress is advised to investigate. The message concludes with a reversion to the force bill issue, which has a peculiarly hollow and insignificant sound in view of the recently expressed opinion of the American people. The Message.

significant sound in view of the recently expressed opinion of the American people.

The Message.

To the Senate and House of Representatives—In submitting my annual message to congress. I have great satisfaction in being able to say that the general conditions atfecting the commercial and industrial interests of the United States are in the greatest degree favorable. A comparison of the existing conditions with those of the most favored period in the history of the country will, I believe, show that so high a degree of prosperity and so general a diffusion of the comforts of life were never before enjoyed by our people.

The total wealth of the country in 1860 was 316,159,616,088; in 1890 it amounted to $62.

The total wealth of the country in 1860 was 316,159,616,088; in 1890 it was 197,741, an increase of 448 per cent, and it is estimated that there will be about four thousand miles of track added by the close of the year 1892. The official returns of the eleventh census and those of the tenth census for seventy-five teading cities, furnish the basis for the following comparisons:

In 1880 the capital invested in manufacturing was $1,232,839,679; in 1890 the capital invested in manufacturing was $2,000,735,-854. In 1890 the number of employes was 1.301,388; in 1890 the mumber of employes was 2.231,134. In 1890 the wages carned were $501,965,773; in 1890 the wages carned were $1,211,170,454. In 1890 the wages carned were $1,211,170,454. In 1890 the value of the product was $2,771,379,899; in 1800 the value of the product was $2,771,379,899; in 1800 the value of the product was $2,771,379,899; in 1800 the value of the product was $2,771,379,899; in 1800 the value of the product was $2,771,379,899; in 1800 the value of the product was $2,771,379,899; in 1800 the value of the product was $2,771,379,899; in 1800 the value of the product was $2,800,000,000, an increase of $60,000 over the year 1891. The consumption of cotton by American mills in lortage of $60,000 over the year 1891. The consumption of cotton by A

During the last six months of the year 1891 and the first six months of 1892, the total production of pig iron was 9.710.819 tons, as against 9.202,703 tons in the year 1890, which was the largest annual production ever attained. For the same twelve months of 1891-92 the production of Bessemer ingots was 3.879,581 tons, an increase of 189,710 gross tons over the previously unprecedented yearly production of 3.688,571 gross tons in 1890. The production of Bessemer steel rails for the first six months of 1892 was 772,436 gross tons, as against 702,080 gross tons during the last six months of the year 1891.

Work and Wages.

There never has been a time in our history when work was so abundant or when wages were so high; whether measured by the currency in which they are paid or by their power to supply the necessities and comforts of life. It is true that the market prices of cotton and wheat have been low. It is one of the unfavorable incidents of agriculture that the farmer cannot produce upon orders. He must sow and reap in ignorance of the aggregate production of the year, and is peculiarly susceptible to the depreciation which follows overproduction. Work and Wages.

But, while the fact I have stated is But, while the fact mentioned, the general But, while the fact I have stated is true, as to the crops mentioned, the general average of-prices has been such as to give to agriculture a fair participation in the general prosperity. The value of our total farm products has increased from $1,363,645,866 in 1890 to $4,500,000,000 in 1891, as estimated by statisticians, an increase of 230 per cent. The number of hogs January 1, 1891 was 50,625,189 and their value $210,193,925. On January 1,1802 the number was 52,398,009 and the value $241,031,415. On January 1, 1891, the number of cattle-was 36,875,648, and the value $244,27,908. On January 1, 1892, the number was 37,351,289 and the value $570,749,155. S241.031.415. Journal of the value $670,749,155.

If any are discontented with their state here; if any believe that wages or prices, the returns for houset toil, are inadequate, they should not fail to remember that there is no other country in the world where the conditions that seem to them hard would not be accepted as highly prosperous. The English agriculturist would be ghad to exchange the returns of his labor for those of the American farmer, and the Manchester workmen their wages for those of their fellows at Fall River. I believe that the protective system, which has now for something more than thirty years continuously prevailed in our legislation, has been a mighty instrument for the development of our national wealth and a most powerful agency in protecting the homes of our working more than the invasion of want. I have felt a most solicitious interest to preserve to our working people rates of wages that would not only give daily bread, but supply a comfortable margin-for those home attractions and family comforts and enjoyments without which life is neither hopeful nor sweet. They are American citizens, a part of the great people for whom our constitution and government were framed and instituted, and it cannot be a perversion of that constitution to so legislate as to preserve in their homes the comfort, independence, loyalty and sense of interest in the government which high in peace, and which will bring this stulwart throng, as in 1861, to the defense of the flag when it is assayled. It is not my purpose to renew here the argument in favor of a protective tariff. The result of the recent election must be accepted as having introduced a new policy. We must assume that the present tariff, constructed upon the lines of protection, is to be repealed and that there is to be substituted for it a tariff law constructed solely with reference to revenue; that no duty is to be higher, because the increase will keep ope

Those who have advocated a protective tariff can well afford to have their disastrous forecasts of a change of policy disappointed.

Will A walt the Results.

If a system of customs duties can be framed that will set the idle wheels and looms of Europe in motion and crowd- our warehouses with foreign made goods, and at the same time keep our own mills busy, that will give us an increased participation in the markets of the world or greater value than the home market we surrender; that will give increased work to foreign worken upon the product to be consumed by our people, without diminishing the amount of work to be done here; that will enable the American manufacturer to pay to his workmen from 50 to 100 per cent more in wages than is paid in the foreign mill and yet to compete in our market and foreign markets with the foreign producer; that will further reduce the cost of articles of wear and food without reducing the wages of those who produce them; that if this can be celebrated after its effects have been realized—as its expectation has hot entitled to the highest praise. We have had in our history several experiences of the world and our history several experiences of the contrasted effects of a revenue and of a protective tariff, but this generation has not felt them and the experience of one generation is not highly instructive to the next. The friends of the protective system, with undiminished confidence in the principles they have advocated, will await the results of the new experiment. The strained and too often disturbed relations existing between the employes and the employers in our great manufacturing establishments have not been favorable to a calm consideration by the wage carners of the effect upon wages of the protective system. The fact that his wages were the highest paid in like callings in the world, and that a maintainance of this rate of wages in the absence of protective duties upon the product of his labor, was impossible, were obscured by the passion evoked by these contests. He m have very naturally included a resume of the whole work of the administration with the transactions of the last fiscal year.

The Onslaught on the Surplus.

The attention, not only of congress, but the country, is again invited to the methods of administration which have been pursued and to the results which have been pursued and to the results which have been pursued and to the results which have been attained. Public revenues amounting to $1,44,079,222.28 have been collected and disbursed without loss from misappropriation, without a single defalcation of such importance as to attract the public attention, and at a diminished percent of cost for collection. The public-business has been transacted, not only with fidelity, but progressively, and with a view to giving to the people in the fullest possible degree the benefits of a service established and maintained for their protection and comfort. Our relations with other nations are now undisturbed by any serious controversy. The complicated and threatening differences with Germany and England relating to Samoan affairs, with England in relation to the seal fishery and in the Behring sea, and with Chile growing out of the Baltimore affair, have been adjusted. There have been negotiated and concluded. There section 3 of the tariff law, commercial agreements relating to reciprocal trade with the following countries: Brazil, Dominean Republic, Spain for Cuba and Porto Rica, Guatamala, Salvador, the German Empire, Great Britain, for certain West Indies colonies and British Guiania, Nicaragua, Honduras and Austria, Hungary, have been concluded since my last annual message. Under these trade arrangements a free or favored admission has been Rican products. Especial care has been taken to secure markets for our surplus brings. An opening has also been made for manufactured products that will undoubtedly, if that policy is maintained, greatly nugment our export trade. The full benefits of these arrangements cannot be realized instantly. New lines of trade are to be ope icy and these trade arrangements can be continued in force and aided by the establishment of American steamship lines. I do not doubt that we shall, within a short period, secure fully one-third of the total trade of the countries of Central and South America, which now amounts to about six hundred millions annually. In 1885 we had only 8 her cent of this trade. Statistics show the increase in our trade with the countries with which we have reciprocal trade agreements from the date when such agreements with into effect up to September 30, 1892, the increase being in some almost wholf? And in others in an important degree, the result of these agreements. This increase is chiefly in wheat, flour, meat and dairy products, and in the manufactures of fron and steel and lumber there has been a large increase in the value of imports from all those countries since the commercial agreements went into effect, amounting to $74.294.525, but it has been entirely in imports from the American countries, consisting mostly of sugar, coffee, India rubber and crude drugs.

Foreign Relations.

Several pages is devoted to a discussion of the seal fisheries controversy still pending with Great Britain. The settlement of the question still being in doubt, nothing more could be given than an outline of the various moves in the matter up to date, with which the public is already familiar. More elaborate attention is given to a discussion of the corrections. question still being in doubt, nothing more could be given than an outline of the various moves in the matter up to date, with which the public is already familiar. More elaborate attention is given to a discussion of the commercial relations between the United States and Canada, which present several most perplexing questions. The long border of several thousand miles, the meagre exchange of commerce which the British provinces have to offer, the transcontinental Canadian line, which must rely largely on American trade for its sustenance, the canal and natural waterway complications, all furnish a perplexing theme for diplomacy to which the attention of congress is specially invited, and an independent canal waterway from the lakes to the seasonst, which will give inland American waters an American outlet, is favored.

A satisfactory ajustment of the Chilean controversy is reported, Chile having paid willingly the indemnities asked for, and the friendliest feeling is announced as existing between the two governments. An assurance of good will and friendly feeling is expressed toward all the Central and South American states, and the mutual benefits of friendly intercourse pointed out. In refering to the relations with other foreign countries, the message is as follows:

"Our relations with Hawaii have been such as to attract an increase interest, and must continue to do so. I deem of great importance the projected submarine cable, a survey for which has been made, should be promoted. Both for naval and commercial uses we should have quick communication with Honolulu. We should before this availed ourselves of the concession, made many years ago to the government, for a harbor and naval station at Pearl river. Many evidences of the friendliness of the Hawaiian government have been given in the past, and it is gratifying to believe that the advantage and necessity of a continuance of very close relations is appreciated. The friendle of the proposition of the firendline of the past, and it is gratifying to believ ever, not to be able to report as yet the adjustment of the claims of the American missionaries arising from the disorders at Ponape, in the Caroline islands, but I anticipate a antisfactory adjustment in view of renewed and urgent representations to the government at Madrid. The treatment of the religious and educational establishments of American citizens in Turkey has of late called for a more than a usual share of attention. A tendency to curtail the toleration which has so beneficially prevailed is discernible and has called forth the earnest remoustrances of this government. Harassina regulations in regard to schools and churches have been attempted in certain localities but not without due protest and the assertion of the inherent and conventional rights of our countrymen. Violations of domicile and seach of the persons and effects of citizens of the United States by apparently irresponsible officials in the Asiatic vilayets have from time to time been reported. An aggravated instance of injury to the property of an American missionary at Bourdeur in the province of Konia called forth an urgent claim for reparation, which I am pleased to say was promptly heeded by the government of the port. Interference with the trading ventures of our citizens in Asia Minor is also reported, and the lack of consular representation in that region is a serious drawbuck to instant and effective protection. I cannot believe that these incidents represent a settled policy, and shall not cease to urge the adoption of proper remedies. International copyright has been extended to Italy by proclamation in conformity with the act of March 3, 1801, upon assurance being given that Italian law permits to citizens of the United States.

The benefit of copyright on substantially the same basis as to subjects of Italy. By a special convention, proclaimed January 15, 1802, reciprocal provisions of copyright have been applied between the United States and Germany. Negotiations are in progress with other countries to the same end. I repe of November and has entered upon the consideration of this great question. I have not doubted and have taken occasion to express that belief as well as in Matters of Finance.

The invitations issued for this conference, as in my public messages, that the free coinage of sliver upon an agreed international ratio would greatly promote the interests of our people and equality those of other nations. It is too early to predict what results may be accomplished by the conference. If any temporary, check or delay intervenes I believe that very soon commercial conditions will compel the now rejuctant governments to unite with us in this movement to securathe enlargement of the volumes of coince money needed for the transaction of the business of the world. The report of the secretary of the treasury will attract special interest in view of the many misleading statements that have been made as to the state of the public revenues. Three preliminary facts should not only be stated but emphasized before looking into details: First, that the public debt has been reduced since March 4, 1889, 259,074,200 and the annual interest charge $11,684,469; second, that there have been paid out for pensions during this administration up to November 1, 1812, $432,564,178.70, an excess of $114,468,386.00 over the sum expended during the period from March 1, 1885, to March 1, 1889, and third, that under the existing tariff up to December 1st, about $93,000,000 of revenue, which would have been collected upon imported sugars if the duty had been maintained, has gone into the pockets of the period from March 1, 1880, and third, that under the existing tariff up to December 1st, about $93,000,000 of revenue, which would have been collected upon imported sugars if the duty had been maintained, has gone into the pockets of the period from March 1, 1880, and third, that the extended pension legislation was a public robbery, or that the duties upon sugar should have been maintained. I am content to leave the argument where it now rests while we based upon estimates of receipts and expanditures for the remaining months of the curse for the remaining months of the curse state of the remaining months of the usual elements. New revenue legislation, elements. New revenue legislation of ven the expectation of it, may reduce the public revenues during the period of uncertainty and during the process of business adjustment to the new conditions when they become known. But the secretary has very wisely refrained from guessing as to the effect of possible changes in our revenue laws, since the scope of these changes and the time of their taking effect cannot in any degree beforecast or foretold by him. His estimates must be based upon existing laws and upon a continuance of existing business conditions, except so far as these conditions may be affected by causes other than new legislation. The estimated receipts for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1891, are $100,121,365,38, 1835,38, leaving and appropriations $457,261, eccipts over expenditures of $22,895,040,05. This does not include any payment to the shuking fund. In the recommendation of the secretary that the shuking fund law be repealed I concur. The redemption of bonds since the passage of the law to June 30, 1892, has already exceeded the requirements by the sum of $390,510,681.40. The retirement of bonds in the future before maturity should be a matter of convenience not of compulsion. We should not collect revenue for that purpose, but only use any casual surplus. To the balance of $22,800,630,05 of receipts over expenditures for the year 1894 should be added the estimated surplus at the beginning of the year $20,902,877,03; from this aggregate there must be deducted, as stated by a state of the secretary proposed and pr message refers in complimentary terms to the conduct of the department under the increased amount of business. It is recommended that a uniform standard of reduction of time for good behavior be adopted for United States prisons, the present regulation leaving this to state laws on the subject, so that the length of a United States prisoner's term varies in the different states. It is also recommended that degrees of murder be recognized by the federal statutes. This would give the courts more discretion in apportiouing punishment and refleve the executive of the numerous applications for commutation.

The enormous work of the court of claims is also referred to, and congress is recommended to make an adequate appropriation for the defense of the government against these suits. It is shown that all the advantage is with the claimants, as they have preserved in each individual case all the evidence bearing favorably on their claim, while the government is forced to search for evidence which years has often rendered it impossible to find. Adequate and experienced counsel is needed to defend the government's cause in such instances, and the amount of the claims being urged is growing very large. The excellent conduct of the postoffice department is shown in detail. The revenues of the office show great gain and the deficit is growing less. The deficit of the present year, it is estimated, will be reduced to $1,557.423, which should not only be extinguished during the present year, but a surplus show 1,590 new mall routes have been added, and during the past four years the number of new offices opened has been nearly nine thousand. The number of free delivery offices has been nearly doubled in that time and the money order offices more than doubled.

The Merchant Marine.

The Merchant Marine

The merchant marine, as it relates to war and commerce, and the question of subsidies is discussed at length as follows:

Ever since our merchant marine was driven from the sea by the rebel erdisers during the war of the rebellion, the United States has been paying an enormous annual tribute to foreign countries in the shape of freight and passage money. Our grain and meats have been taken at our own docks and our agreement there had down by foreign and passage money. Our grain and meats have been taken at our own docks and our agreement an increasing contributed a vast sum annually to the dividends of foreign shipowers. The balance of trade shown by the books of our custom houses has been very largely reduced and in many years altogether extinguished by this constant drain. In the year 1892 only 12.3 per cent of our imports were brought in American vessels. These great foreign steamships maintained by our traffic are, many of them, under contracts with their respective governments, by which in time of war they will become a part of their armed naval establishments.

Profiting by our commerce in peace, they will become the most formidable in the confliction of things was both intolerable and disgraceful. A wholesome change of policy and one having in it much promise, as is seems to me, was begun by the law of March 3, 1891. Under shis law contracts have been made by the postmaster general for eleven mail routes. The expenditure involved by these contracts for the next fiscal year approximates $864,123.33. As one of the results already reached sixteen American steamships of an aggregate tonnage of 57, 400 tons, costing $7,400.00, have been built or contracted to be built in American ship yards. The extruction of five ships of 10,000 tons each, costing nine or ten millions of dollars, and will add, with the City of New York and City of Parls, to which the transaury department was authorized by legislation at the last seasion to give American registry, seven of the swiftest vessels upon the sea to our naval reserv Asche mail line, under the act of arters, 1831, receives only $6,389 per round trip. Efforts have been made within the last year, as I am informed, to establish under military conditions, a line between Vancouver and some Australian port, with a view of seizing there a trade in which we have had a large interest. The commissioner of navigation says that a very large per cent of our imports from Asia are now brought to us by English steamships and their connecting railways in Canada with a view of promoting their trade, especially in tea. Canada has imposed a discriminating duty of 10 per cent upon tea and coffee brought into the dominion from the United States. If this unequal contest between American lines, without subsidy or with diminished subsidies and the English Canadian line to which I have referred, is to continue, I think we should at least see that the facilities for customs entry and transportation across our territory are not such as to make the Canadian route a favored one, and that the discrimination as to duties to which I have referred, is met by a like discrimination as to the importation of these articles from Canada.

No subject, I think, more nearly touches the pride, power and prespective of our country than this of the development of our merchant marine upon the sea. If we could enter into conference with other competitors and all would agree to withhold government aid, we could perhaps take our chances with the rest, but our great competitorys have established and maintained their lines by government subsidies until now they have practically excluded us from participation. In my opinion no choice is left to us but to pursue moderately at least the same lines.

cinded us from participation. In my opinion no choice is left to us but to pursue moderately at least the same lines.

The Navy.

The report of the secretary of the navy exhibits great progress in the construction of our new navy. When the present secretary entered upon his duties only three modern steel vessels were in commission. The vessels since put in commission and to be put in commission during the winter will make a total of nineteen during the winter will make a total of nineteen during the current year ten war vessels and three navy tugs have been launched and during the four years twenty-five vessels will have been launched. Two other large ships and a forpedo boat are under contract, and the work upon them will advance rapidly, and the four monitors are awaiting only the arrival of their armor, which have been unexpectedly delayed, or they would have been before this in commission. Contracts have been let during this administration, under the appropriation for the increase of the navy, including new vessels and their appartinances, to the amount of $35,000,000, and there has been expended during the same period for labor at navy yards upon similar work, $8,000.000, without the smallest scandal or charge of fraud or partiality. The enthusiasm and interest of our naval officers, both of the staff and line, have been greatly kindled. They have responded magnificently to the confidence of congress, and have demonstrated to the world an unexcelled capacity in construction. In accordance, and in everything involved in the building, equipping and sailing of great war ships. At the beginning of Secretary Tracy's administration several difficult problems remained to be grappled with and solved before the efficency in action of our ships could be secured. It is believed that as the result of new processes in the construction of armor plate our later ships will be clothed with defensive plates of higher resisting power than are found on any war vessels affoat. We were without torpedoes. Tests have been made to tion is now being carried on successfully. We were without armor-piercing shells and with out a shop instructed and equipped for construction of them. We are now making what is beliered to be-a projectile superior to an in use. A smokeless powder has been diveloped and a slow-burning powder for guy of large calibre. A high explosive capabor use in shells fired from service guns habeen found and the manufacture of gun co ton has been developed, so that the question of supply is no longer in doubt. The divelopment of a naval militia, which has been remained in eight states and brought cordial and co-operative relations with the

Four years ago Clay was engaged to Miss Williams but reconsidered his action, after a little over a year's time, but it was then too late. Clay's only reason for then too late. eaking the engagement seems to have been on account of some property left by Miss McWilliams's father, who died several years ago, and which was in dispute as wnership between the family of Miss McWilliams on one s'de and that of Clay's relatives on the other.

This property is now in litigation in the courts of DeKalb county.

Vote for George Forbes Today.

Editor Constitution—In the race for clerk of the superior court, which will be decided by the people today at the ballot box, it should not be forgotten that the credit for the fine condition of the clerk's office is due to Mr. George Forbes. His fine executive ability is what brought order out of chaos when he first went into that office and substituted therefor the orderly arrangement which ex-therefor the orderly arrangement which exists today.

It is only fair, therefore, that the man to whom the credit is due should be rewarded by a term as principal in the office which he has raised to such a high standard. No man has worked harder than George Forbes for the people, as will be attested by all who have ever met him officially. He possesses every requisite, and the people will be untrue to themselves if they fail to elect George Forbes to the position of clerk of the superior court of Fulton county.

Let us honor ourselves by giving him the place he seeks.

The Stevens auction is still all the rage and no wonder. The bargains which are being secured there are becoming known, and we hear of parties being formed in Marietta Colff. Marietta, Griffin, Covington and other towns who are coming to Atlanta for the special purpose of attending this auction.

A lady resident of Peachtree street bought a pair of bronze pitchers for $17.00 that were worth $37.00. A well known Atlanta lawyer bought a pair of $8.00 solid silver garter buckles for $2.75. A solid 14-carat gold gentleman's watch was sold for $13.75. The gold in the cases was worth much more than this. Hun-dreds of bargains of this kind were bought Jesterday and their handsome establishment is crowded at every sale—the interat seems to be increasing every day. No person who has Christmas presents to give can afford to stay away from this auction. Ten dollars spent at the Stevens auction will have a seem to the stevens are stated to the stat The dollars spent at the Stevens aucuon will buy as much as $30.00 elsewhere.

J. P. Stevens & Bro. are losing heavily by the sale, but they are determined to close out this stock, and made up their minds to the loss before the sale was started. We advise those who have not attended to visit the auction today.

To the Editor of The Herild: The sheriff contest may be disposed of by answering the following questions:

Has Captain Morrow discharged his official duty?

Is there anything in his public or private life that deserves criticisms?

Is it just to refuse an endorsement to a competent official?

Neither one of these three questions can be answered adversely to Captain Morrow. He has made one of the most faithful and efficient officers that Fulton county ever had. His life, both public and private, is without a blemish. This being true, it would be a great injustice to a good citizen and competent official to say that he shall not have a second term. It should be a rule inviolate with all voters to endorse an official for the second term who has discharged his duty well and faithfully. This is the right thing to do, as a matter of simple justice and it is the correct thing to do as a matter of democratic precedent.

I have nothing to say in criticism of his opponents. They are my personal friends, and I would get up at any hour of the night to render them a service. But Captain Morrow calls for a second term, and it occurs to me that no sound reason can be presented why the people should deny him this endorsement. This view of the matter cannot be urged in behalf of his former deputies. They voluntarily made up an opposition ticket and stand before the community as new candidates. Captain Morrow, the sheriff, is before the people for re-election. Let the people see to it that he is endorsed.

tion and appropriations as will encourage and develop this movement. The recommendations of the secretary will I do not doubt receive the friedly consideration of congress, for he has enjoyed, as he deserved, the confidence of all those interested in the development of our mavy without any division upon partisan lines. I earnestly express the hope that a work which has made such noble progress may not now be stayed. The whole some influence for peace and the increased sense of security which our citizens domiciled in other lands feel when these magnificent ships under the American flag appear is already most greatfully apparent. The ships from our navy, which will appear in the great naval parade next April in the harbor of New York, will be a convincing demonstration to the world that the United States is again a naval power.

The Interior Department. The Interior Department.

The Interior Department.

The report of the interior department is elaborate and heavy, dealing as it does to such an extent with trivial Indian troubles, the opening of new lands, the government of Alaska, etc. The work of the department is reported to be in a most satisfactory condition. Several important agreements for the cession of Indian lands negotiated by the commissioner are awaiting the action of congress, prominent among them being that of the Cherokee strip, which has been a great source of friction and unrest between the settlers who desire to occupy it and the Indians who assert title. The agreement made by the commissioner is reported as the most satisfactory that could be reached. The message favors its adoption by congress. The affairs of Alaska are recommended for consideration, and the necessity for a revision of its law shown. The land office is reported as being open to current business. The whole Indian question is discussed at length and measures looking to his betterment suggested.

The Pension Question.

The Pension Question.

The report of the commissioner of pensions to which extended notice is given by the secretary of the interior in his report, will at tract great attention, judged by the aggregate amount of work done the last year, has been the greatest in the history of the office. I believe that the reorganization of the office is efficient and that the work has been done with fidelity. The passage of what is known as the disability bill has, as was foreseen, very largely increased the annual disburse ment to the disabled veterans of the civil war. The estimate for this fiscal year was $144,956,000, and that amount was appropriated a deficiency amounting to $10,608.621 which must be provided for at this session. The setimate for pensions for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1894, is $165,000,000. The commissioner of pensions believes that if the present legislation and methods are maintained and further additions to the pension laws are not made the maximum expenditure for pensions will be reached June 30 1894, and will be at the highest premium. I adhere to the views expressed in previous messages that the care of the disabled soldiers of the war of the rebellion is a matter of, mailonal concern and duty. Perhaps no emotion cools sooner than that of gratitude but I cannot believe that this process has yet reached a point with out people that, would sustain the policy of remitting the carr of these disabled veterans to the inadequate agencies provided by local laws.

The parade on the 20th of September last, upon the streets of this capital, of sixty thousand of the surviving union veterans of the war of the rebellion, was a most touching and thrilling episode, and the rich and gracious welcome extended to them by the District of Columbia and the applause that graced their progress from tens of thousands of people from all the states, did much to revive the glorious recollections of the grand review when these men and many thousands, now in their graves, were welcomed with grateful joy as victors in a st

The Union Pacific Railway.

The Union Pacific Railway.

In my last annual message I called attention to the fact that some legislative action was necessary in order to protect the interest of the government in its relations with the Union Pacific railway. The commissioner of railroads has submitted a very full report, giving exact information as to the debt, the liens upon the company's property and its resources. We must deal with the question as we find it, and take that course which will, under existing conditions, best secure the interest of the United States. I recommended in my last annual message that a commission be appointed to deal with the question and I renew that recommendation, and suggest that the commissioners be given full power.

The Agriculturist Department.

the commissioners be given full power.

The Agriculturist Department.

The report of the secretary of agriculture contains not only a most interesting statement of the progressive and valuable work done under the administration of Secretary Rusk, but many suggestions for the enlarged usefulness of this important department. In the successful effort to break down the restrictions to the free introduction of our meat products in the countries of Europe, the secretary has been untiring from the first, stimulating and aiding all other government officers at home and abroad whose official duties enabled them to participate in the work.

Ouarantine Regulations retary has been untiring from the first, still ulating and aiding all other government of ficers at home and abroad whose official duties enabled them to participate in the work.

Quarantine Regulations.

The subject of quarantine regulations, inspection and control, was brought suddenly to my attention by the arrival at our ports, in August last, of vessels infected with cholera. Quarantine regulations should be uniform at all our ports. Under the constitution they are plainly within the exclusive federal jurisdiction when and so far as congress shall legislate. In my opinion the whole subject should be taken into national control and adequate power given to the executive to protect our people against plague invasions. On the last of September last I approved regulations establishing a twenty-day quarantine for all vessels bringing immigrants from force. Some loss and suffering have resulted to passengers, but a due care for the homes of our people justifies in such cases the utmost precaution. There is danger that with the coming of spring cholera will again appear, and a liberal appropriation should be made at this session to enable our quarantine and port officers to exclude the deadly plague. But the most careful and stringent quarantine regulations may not be sufficient absolutely to exclude the disease. The progress of medical and sanitary science has been such, however, that if approved precautions are taken at once to put all of our cities and towns in the best sanitary condition and provision is made for isolating any sporadic cases and for a thorough disinfection and provision is made for isolating any sporadic cases and for a thorough disinfection and provision is made for isolating any sporadic cases and for a thorough disinfection and provision is made for isolating any sporadic cases and for a thorough disinfection and provision in the heat of the local authorities and the responsibility and the penalty will be appalling if it is neglected or unduly delayed.

We are peculiarly subject in our port Quarantine Regulations.

The many cases of violence, the mean, and the liquor traffic in the cautial of the nation should be freed from this reproach by the concrment of stringent restrictions and libitations upon the traffic.

Nearly 16 per cent of the death occurred in the coupling and uncoupling of the same origin.

a remnant of that tribe declined to leave the hunting grounds so long occupied by themselves and their ancestors amid the grand mountains and lovely valleys of western North Carolina.

It is not surprising that they were reluctant to forsake that locality, for, apart from the affection which always exists in the human breast for the childhood's home, they have certainly been possessed of a charmingly beautiful scope of country, where the climate is as ideally perfect as any that can be found, and nature is seen in her grandest aspects. The Alleghany rauge here reaches its greatest altitude. The bear and deer have stalked upon those hills and along the water courses of the valleys, unmolested by the white man. The speckled trout inhabit the numerous rushing mountain streams.

Such an Eden-like country formed a striking contrast to the desolate plains of Indian Territory. So the remnant of the Cherokees remained in that superb section and are there yet. But a change is at hand. The ever encroaching white man has "spied out" this fair land. He has taken an inventory of its resources, he has seen that here nature has done her best work and that brains, capital and labor invested will bring large rewards.

Already the great Richmond and Danville Railroad Company has extended its line from Ashville to Murphy, having completed the division last year, and now the dense black columns of smoke from the coal burning locomotive ascend where the pale plume of blue, hanging over wigwam or mountaineer's cabin, was alone seen. This division of railroad runs through rugged mountains which are covered by primeval forests of valuable timber.

Here are found in their greatest perfection all species of timber known to the temperate zone, there being immense quantities of the finest pine, chestnut, oak, ash, hickory, walnut, cherry, poplar, birch, etc. The ground is rich with untold wealth. It is productive of more varieties of mineral than any other region of like area on this continent. The mountain streams furnish water powers wh ment by themselves taking largely of its stock.

It is a strong point in favor of the enterprise that those that are closest to it, and have opportunity to know it best, are most enthusiastic concerning it. The capital stock of $1,000,000 has been nearly all subscribed for, and active development work is now in progress upon the ground under the supervision of the company's engineer. Before long building stone and shafts, columns and polished slabs will go out from the quarries of Nantahala to the markets of the world. The stock is sold at par value, $100 per share, and may be paid for in ten equal monthly payments. The most experienced and successful town builders of the south are connected with the company, and they find here the resources that will enable them to make Nantahala the crowning piece of town building of the south. A town lot at Nantahala is given with every two shares subscribed for. The company has offices in Atlanta, Ga, and in the Bennett building, this city.

WELVE PAGES

ATLANTA, GA., December 7, 1892.

Mr. Harrison's Message Mr. Harrison's message is not a very interesting document, in spite of the fact that the recent overwhelming disaster to his party gave him a powerful excuse for making a display of the humor that is said to be characteristically American. We learn of course that the country is in a very fine condition so far as our foreign relations are concerned, and that all the nations of the earth, so far as heard from, are our most humble-come-tumble friends and obedient servants. All this was known before, but it is reassuring to have it put down in black and white and signed by the president. Nevertheless, Mr. Harrison's message is not wholly without interest. He devotes several paragraphs to the tariff question, and approaches the subject with a chip on his shoulder. He draws a tremendous picture, endeavoring on one and the same canvas to portray the beauties of protection to millionaire manufacturers, and the horrible results of a system of which the whole people will share the benefits. No doubt Mr. Harrison understands the situation, but he doesn't accept the result. He seems to think that the democrats, if they carry out their promises will sweep away the whole tariff, and leave the wage-earners and the industries of the country flat.

But we must allow something for the animus of a defeated partisan. His arguments are the result of his desires. He would be glad to see the democratic party engage in legislation damaging to the business and industrial interests of the country and to itself, so that his own corrupt organization may come in and enjoy as it were the usufruct. But we can assure Mr. Harrison that he is doomed to disappointment. The democratic party has no interests apart from those of the people of the country, and it is more interested in the welfare of the wageearners and the struggling poor than the republican party has ever shown itself to be. The democrats come to restore equity and equality and not to promote and perpetuate inequality and injustice.

Mr. Harrison outlines very clearly the programme of the republicans. They will fight it out on the old lines. They will have the McKinley law or nothing. He has also outlined the attitude of the republican senate. That body will not aid the present congress to dispatch any of the tariff bills, or to forward the work of tariff reform. He suggests that legislation of that kind be left to the new congress. This is a good democratic suggestion, and we venture to follow it up with another. We suggest that Mr. Harrison beg his party not to steal the senate, but to give the democrats a chance to show up what tariff reform really means.

The president has discovered that some very serious charges of election frauds have been made against the republicans. and he goes so far as to hope that both parties will take the matter up and dispose of it so as to preserve the purity of the ballot. He makes no outright allusion to the force bill, which is not singular, considering the verdict of the people. Nevertheless, he shows that he would not be averse to it if the republic ans were to continue to hold office.

The only other point of special interest in his message, is his allusion to the importance of the Nicaragua canal project. He advises congress to assist the enterprise, and we think Mr. Harrison's suggestion is a good one.

We have only this further comment to make on the message, and it is thisthat considering the fact that it is the last annual message Mr. Harrison will ever make to congress, it is a remarkably dull document.

The French Crisis.

Although the French republic is twenty years old, its stability is by no means assured.

In France the most unexpected event are always happening, and they have many times caused revolutions that have been far-reaching in their consequences. The downfall of the Loubet cabinet and the lack of confidence in the new one which Brisson is organizing would not be ominous were it not for the circumstances that have caused the change. The parliament, reflecting the sentiments of the people, is boiling over the Panama scandal. The latest development add to the gravity of the situation. According to Rossignol, the expert employed by the government, the canal company spent millions in subsidizing newspapers and nearly every Paris editor was pai Whenever a new loan was floated The Petit Journal was paid 100,000 francs, The Figaro, 80,000 francs, The Telegraph, 150,000 francs, The De-bats, 25,000 francs, The Matin 50,000 francs and The Gaulos, 50,000 francs. When a great loan was contemplated these sums were doubled. Fully 300,000,-000 francs went for newspaper subsidies and millions were paid without proper entries on the books. Rosignol said that the company was under great pressure from America, and men on the isthmus literally held the knife at the company's throat. Threats were made to arm 3,000 workmen on the canal and seize the plant unless money was forthcoming.

The sensation caused in France by these exposures is simply tremendous. President Carnot finds it impossible to pacify the people by promising to prosecute the guilty, and all the dissatisfied elements are in a state of upheaval, ready for revolt when a leader appears.

But there are no Napoleons in France now, and the fear is that some glib charletan like Boulanger will come to the front and catch the popular fancy. The one chance of maintaining order is the fact that there is no man now on deck sufficiently popular with the military, the socialists and the common people to seize the reins of power. This lack of leader may save the republic, and may even enable Brisson's cabinet, unheld by the firm hand of Carnot, to straighten out the tangle. At present there is some prospect that the prosecution of the leading officials of the canal company will have a tendency to appease a wrathful public.

Today's Election.

With our county primary and the municipal election we have practically two elec-

So much interest is felt in the primary by the friends of the various candidates for the county offices that the city election is in some danger of being forgotten or neglected by many voters.

It is to be hoped that our citizens will not make this mistake. There is a duly nominated citizens' ticket in the field for mayor and council, and there are none but first-class men on it. This ticket must receive a large vote as a deserved endorsement, and we desire to remind every voter that he will leave his duty only half done if he participates in the primary and fails to vote in the municipal election.

It will take only a few minutes to attend to both. Vote for the municipal ticket, and also for your choice in the county primary!

A Strange Epidemic.

Advices from St. Louis report an alarming epidemic of typho-malarial fever in that city.

Some days as many as 300 cases are reported, and the disease is of a very malignant type. It is maintained by some physicians that the epidemic is the result of the tremendous floods of last spring. If this is the case the inhabitants of other localities Visited by the overflow will have good reason to be apprehensive. Will the plague draw the line at St. Louis, or march through the river districts of the southwest?

It is too early to answer the question, but if the fever shows a tendency to spread the dwellers in our flood regions will have a danger to confront that will be even more dreadful than their periodical overflows.

As to the Sherman Law

The New York World and some other democratic newspapers in warm touch with Wall street, are urging with considerable energy the repeal of the Sherman silver law, on the ground that its repeal was demanded by the democratic platform and endorsed by the people. But The World and the monometallist demo crats who trot along with it should bear in mind that the endorsement of the democratic platform by the people is not to be construed as a charter to take the bridle off of legislation and run the country into a hole in the ground.

The World says the Sherman silver law must be repealed, as if that settled the matter. But the moment the suggestion is made other questions arise. What would be the result of a repeal of the Sherman law? Awhile ago, the goldolators of the north and west were in favor of allowing silver to find its "natural level." It is a phrase borrowed from English bankers, who gave it a great vogue a few years ago. When the Bland act was under discussion, this phrase was applied to the situation, and even used as an argument, barren as it was. Since then, Wall street and its newspaper agen cies have taken it up with considerable enthusiasm. The United States-according to this argument-should take their hands off silver, cease to give it an artificial value, and allow it to find its "natural level." This policy, we are told, would teach Europe a long-needed lesson and be the means of bringing the effete monarchies to their knees so far as the silver question is concerned. It is observable that this phrase, with its cunning argument, has fallen into innocuous desuetude in foreign parts, and it is in evidence that the European financiers who are in attendance on the mone tary conference are firmly of opinion that the process of conducting silver to its "natural level" will involve the nations of the earth in a financial panic without parallel. Our own monometallists say that this government should take its hands off silver in order to teach Europe lesson. They argue that Great Britain is involved in the silver question in India, and that her interests in that country as well as at home will be greatly disturb ed the moment the United States cease to give the metal an artificial value.. We have no doubt this is true. Indeed the financial writers of Great Britain free ly admit it And yet, the people of this country are more hopelessly involved in the meshes of the silver net than Great Britain and her Indian possessions. If the downward course of silver to its "natural level" would injure British interests, it would involve those of the United States in ruin. Many of our readers no doubt remember the panic that danced attendnce on the demonetization of silver in 1873. That panic was a mild disturbance compared to the collapse of values that would follow the repeal of the Sherman law with no other legislation. It is true, no doubt, that Groat Britain would suffer somewhat by the collar but the disaster would knock at our own doors and finally break them down. We desire, therefore, to lift up our voice in warning. The repeal of the Sherman silver law, with no legislation to protect the interests of the people, would result in a financial crash in this country so ruinous that there would not be enough left of the political party promoting it to

That the Sherman law should be repealed we have no doubt, but the repeal should be accompanied by a law opening the mints of the United States to free coinage on private account. That and that alone is the solution of the silver

Henry W. Hilliard.

When these lines meet the eyes of our readers Henry W. Hilliard may be among the dying or the dead.

Men of the younger generation know comparatively little of this remarkable man. They have seen him in his old age, and have admired his attractive qualities of head and heart, and have marveled somewhat over his equipoise of mind and body, but they do not fully appreciate his long and useful career at its full

Mr. Hilliard in his time has been a conspicuous figure in the forum and the pulpit—in courts and camps and cabinets. He was a university professor at twentythree. He made a record as an orator. literary man, lawyer, statesman, preacher, diplomatist and soldier. For fifty years and more he was well known in the highest social circles of both the old world and the new. Kings, queens, emperors, nobles and the most famous men of the century were among his friends and acquaintances.

His services in congress as minister to Belgium and later to Brazil would fill volumes, and the story would add many interesting chapters to the world's history. Some of our readers will remember the wonderful twenty years' debate in Alabama before the war between Hilliard and William L. Yancey. They were both fearless, cultured and models of countesy. Yancey's blographer, Colonel DuBose, says in his book that Hilliard studied the construction of sentences and the manner of delivery. His diction was elegant and his utterances extremely fluent. His tall figure, ever graceful, handsome features, brilliant eyes, distinguished appearance and well-trained voice assisted his words. He grouped his facts well, avoided wounding the prejudices of his hearers, seldom employed the great power of sarcasm he was known to possess and told of the defeat of his party as if it were a triumph. The democrats charged against him that, while he advanced with the point of his lance concealed under a garland of roses, he often succeeded in unseating the convictions of the unwary by the argument the flowers concealed. He had a richer fancy than Yancey, employed more art and was more adroit. He had the self-confidence of culture and the subtlety of conscious power. He was courteous, animated and brilliant. Hilliard's friends likened Yancey to the leveling rush of the storm: Yancey's friends likened Hilliard to the repose of nature when the rainbow spans the sky.

Only a great man could call forth such a tribute from the friend and biographer of his life-long rival.

We do not know of an American in public life today with the culture, brilliancy and power of Mr. Hilliard when at his best. More than all, he has been a good man with the kindest of hearts, and the world has been made brighter and better by his words and deeds.

On the Right Line

From The Southern Cultivator.

We regret to see an unfriendly spirit mani fested, in some quarters, against our state department of agriculture, which, under the administration of Hon. R. T. Nesbitt, has reached a high plane of usefulness. The de-partment is second to none in its practical methods, the accuracy of its statistics, and the value of the information it is able to part to the farmers and planters of Georgia.

That there should be any objection or obstruction at all to such an important institution on the part of anybody who takes prope oride in the progress of the state, is strange out that any one claiming to be a farmer should not only attempt to cripple its useful ness, but openly advocate the abolish department, and introduce a bill to that effect in the legislature, is stranger still, and shows a lack of appreciation of what constitutes good government, and a blindness to the best interests of the farmers of Georgia, that is really deplorable, this department being the only one created exclusively for the benefit of our farmers. There is no depart nent of our state half as profitable to the ment of our state half as prontable to the farmers as the department of agriculture. It repays every dollar of tax appropriated for its support with compound interest; it is esset tial to the well being of Georgia's farming interests, and its discontinuance would be a public calamity. Fortunately the importance and practical value of this department can be seen that the properties of the are too well understood by intelligent citi zens, and our farmers appreciate the useful hints and the great value of its reports and suggestions too highly to suffer the few ene-mies which the department has throughout the state to endanger its existence, or ever to permit it to be crippled by unwise and to permit it to be crippled by unwise detrimental legislation.

No election in the county has attracted one attention in years than the one now on. The field is full of candidates and each one is certain of success in the race. Four of the candidates will have a walkover and they are about the happiest lot

For Sheriff, and It's Warm.

The fight for the sheriff's office is particplarly warm and interesting and has caused many old Licends to fall out. The three tickets in the field are all composed of good men, and every man on each ticket has many friends who will stand by him to the end. Fulton has never had a better opportunity to select a good sheriff than she now has, because there is no sorry timber in the race. On each ticket there are gentemen who have served in the office be-fore and are thoroughly conversant with the duties of the position. Captain Morrow, who was elected sheriff Captain Morrow, who was elected sheriff two years ago, wants to be returned to the place and his friends think that he should are it again. No man has ever made a better officer than Captain Morrow, and his return to the office for another term would please many of the very best people of fulton county. He has long been one of the best citizens of the county and has given his life to the work of the office during the past two years. His deputies are well known throughout the county and are all me best two years. His deputies are well inown throughout the county and are all men fully competent to discharge the work that would come up. With Mir. Heador as an assistant, aided by the other gendemen on the ticket, Captain Morrow will make a strong combination when the sters go to make up their tickets today. Captain Barnes, who was a deputy under Captain Morrow for two years, is at the head of another ticket. Captain Barnes, shen he left the Morrow combination, carried away with him all the deputies that were on the ticket when it was elected two years ago. But like Captain Barnes, each of these were good men who had had a mining in the office and who will make pod officers if they are elected.

Major Howard heads the third ticket and his friends claim that he will be the next therefore the county. He has never been in politics before and is backed up by a good let of deputies. Some of the men who are at the ticket are men who are well known all over the county and who will not be stangers in the office if they are elected.

But in carrying on the campaign, all the anddates have been indulging in some sharp talk. None of the candidates or these who are associated with them have sweed the talk, and in some instances some puty hard things have been said. Once or twice collisions have been narrowly sweed. But luckly the trouble has not good the clerkshin fight the race is between the ticket of the Courts.

For Clerk of the Courts.

In the clerkship fight the race is between laige Tanner, the present incumbent, and that G. B. Forbes.

Indee Tanner has made one of the best certs Fulton county has ever had and will entinue to give the same satisfaction if it is reelected. His office is now the best quipped in the state and all who have any came to visit it from a distance always a home carrying words of praise with hem for the judge. In the office are Dr. Holliday and Mr. Walter Venable, two of the best and most competent men in the sate. The details of the office are thorough and the work of each department is kept as satisfactorily as if it stood alone. Captain Forbes, who is opposing the judge, and was for a long time a deputy in the office under Judge Tanner. He is thoroughly posted in the work and would make a god clerk if elected.

For Tax Receiver.

For Tax Receiver.

The tax receiver's place is being sought for by two well-known gentlemen, both of whom are well qualified to fill the position. Captain Armistead, who is in the office at preent, is a candidate for re-election and its friends claim that he will win the fight. He has made a good and acceptable officer and asks for his re-election on, that ground a well as upon others. His deputy, Mr. John Gatins, is one of the best known and most loyular young men in the city who has any friends to support him. He has always been a great favorite but since he went into office and has been thrown with the public he has grown much stronger.

Captain Frank T. Ryan has been in Athans a long time and has held many offices. Is one has ever done his work more faithally than he and none have more friends to day. He is one of the men who went to the fout when men were needed.

The Candidates for Commissioner. For Tax Receiver.

The Candidates for Commissioner. The Candidates for Commissioner.

The race for county commissioner is alset as warm as that for sheriff but is devid of the many disagreeable features that he hanging around the race for the sheriffity. The candidates are pushing along for a place without indulging in any of the trip talk that is now marking the other eatest. All of the candidates are seeking section without questioning the ability of any of the others to discharge the work.

Meanly half a dozen gentlemen are saing the county commissioners' have. Two commissioners are to elected and for the places the neare growing warm. On the north side the railroad there are two candidates and on the south side there are three.

in the office he will conduct himself in the In the office he will conduct himself in the ame easy quiet way he pursues in busizes. Nothing will pass by him without the text through and careful investigation, and when once he is convinced that he is deat, nothing will change him. Mr. Hompson's life has been one of business, and when he takes hold of anything he does to with a determination to succeed. If he is dected county commissioner he will be set of the best Fulton county has ever had. Judging from the manner in which Mr. Thompson's friends are working for him as indications are that he will be one of the two commissioners elected today. Captain J. M. Liddell, the other gentleman who lives on the north side, is known all over the county and has friends in every darriet in the county who will hurry to he polls this morning to vote for him. He has been a resident of the county for years and has more than once been the recipient of the confidences of his friends. He was a then a the confidences of his friends. He was a then are for sheriff once and made a strong race. If Mr. Liddell is elected his friends will have no occasion to regret it. Mr. Charles Collier, who has filled many bases in the right of the people, is in the nee, and says that he will be elected. It is not the less only when they predict the elected. tion they are willing to wager that Mr. Collier will go in. Mr. Collier has been in the aldermanic board and made a good man in that position. He has served the county in the position he is now seeking, and has made a good man there. Mr. Collier is known as one of the best and safest men in the county.

ALL THE RAGE

The Stevens auction is still all the rage and no wonder. The bargains which are being secured there are becoming known, and we hear of parties being formed in Marietta, Griffin, Covington and other towns who are coming to Atlanta for the process. towns who are coming to Atlanta for the special purpose of attending this auction. A lady resident of Peachtree street bought a pair of bronze pitchers for $17.00 that were worth $37.00. A well known Atlanta lawyer bought a pair of $8.00 solid silver garter buckles for $2.75. A solid 14-carat gold gentleman's watch was sold for $13.75. The gold in the cases was worth much more than this. Hundreds of bargains of this kind were bought yesterday and their handsome establishment is crowded at every sale—the interest seems to be increasing every day. No ment is crowded at every sale—the interest seems to be increasing every day. No person who has Christmas presents to give can afford to stay away from this auction. Ten dollars spent at the Stevens auction will buy as much as $30.00 elsewhere.

J. P. Stevens & Bro. are losing heavily by the sale, but they are determined to close out this stock, and made up their minds to the loss before the sale was started. We advise those who have not attended to visit the auction today. (Communicated.)

from which its history is written, are cared for, and it is there that every one must go when he wishes to trace his title to anything which is worth having.

A good clerk is mighty hard to find and when a county does find one the people should be slow to make a change. Since the county of Fulton was established she has had many clerks and some of them were of the best, but never has she had a clerk more devoted to his work than Judge Tanner. Since he went into the office he has produced many changes and every one was for the good. So complete was his work in this line that he has been given the endorsement of the judges. Every judge whose work has brought him in contact with Judge Tanner give him the strongest endorsement and recommends his re-election by the people. Judge Marshall J. Clarke says that he is one of the best court officers he has ever seen and that he should be re-elected.

Judge Tanner has the endorsement of all who have met him in his work. Here is what some of the well known lawyers say about him:

Colonel Albert Cox—I think Henry Tanner has made the best clerk I have ever seen. He knows his work and does it well. He is pleasant with all who come around him and it is a pleasure to transact business with him. I'm for Judge Tanner every time and shall take pleasure in voting for him.

Walter R. Brown—Henry Tanner is the best clerk the county has ever had and should be re-elected without any question. He has made an excellent reputation and those who meet him know that his work is as it should be.

made an excellent reputation and those who meet him know that his work is as it should be.

Colonel James Austin—I have never thought of voting for any one but Judge Tanner, and for my part I can't see why any one can vote against him.

H. C. Erwin—I'm going to vote for Henry Tanner, and I know that he will be elected.

Henry Zahner—I'm for Henry Tanner and I feel sure that he will be elected.

Colonel W. S. Thomson—I have had occasion to inspect that office many times and I have always found it the best kept office in the country. Judge Tanner is one of the very best clerks in the country.

T. L. Bishop—The clerk's office is the best kept in the state and Judge Tanner has shown himself to be one of the most accommodating clerks in the world.

"I have known Judge Tanner from childhood," said Mr. Green T. Dodd, "and during my term of eighteen years as jury commissioner and nearly five years as county commissioner, I had an opportunity to learn a good deal about the way he was conducting his office during his term, and I can deliberately say that he was one of the best county clerks I have ever had anything to do with. He understands his business well and has the ability and courage to do it, and I hope he will be re-elected."

Atlanta had some mighty mad men yesterday, but about two of the maddest were Captain James W. Morrow and Mr. J. J. Meador who are making the race for sher-

But others were about as mad as these But others were about as mad as these two gentlemen, and among them were some of the gentlemen whe had been quoted in a presumed interview in The Journal yesterday afternoon. This interview was thrown before the reading public under big headlines and announced that a great troop of well known Atlantians had flocked around the Barnes ticket, and that today they the Barnes ticket, and that today they would turn out and put that ticket through

The array of names was a strong one, and for a short time after the paper came out the friends of the other two candidates, who were not on the inside, felt like the work they had been doing had been thrown away. Apparently the entire town had gone for that Barnes ticket.

But about dark Captain Morrow and Mr. Meador came into The Constitution and they were both somewhat warm under the No. 16 they have been wearing the past day or two, for neither one has had time to change since the election got so warm.

"See this paper," said Captain Morrow, "That story is one of fabrication from beginning to end, and I want the world to know it. Since the paper came out, and it has been out only about an hour or two, I have received a half-dozen cards from parties who are quoted there, saying that they had not been seen. Some of them went further and said that when they were quoted as against our ticket they were quoted as against our ticket they were quoted wrong. I have here notes from more than one of them saying that they were for me, and the notes have been written since The Journal came out this afternoon. I think this is the most cowardly attempt to injure me that has ever been made. I don't mind a man fighting me if he will do it openly. These people over there thought that I could not have a chance to answer this tissue of misrepresentation, and at first I had no idea that I would attempt to do anything of the kind. But within the last hour some of the best friends I have in the city have been to me. Some of them were in that interview and others had heard some who were quoted, talking since the paper came out.

"For these friends," said Captain Morrow, "I have deemed it my duty to let the public know that The Journal has been toying and playing with their names. Many of these gentlemen are indignant at the unwarrantable use that paper has seen fit to make of their names and they will not soon forget it. It is true that many of the gentlemen who were quoted are for that ticket and I can see why they should be. If you will glance over the list you will, for instance, find that there are a large number of our best Irish citizens there who will vote for Mike Blount. In fact there are good Irish gentlemen there that no one could take away from that genial popular gentleman. Had The Journal attempted an honest warfare on me it would have been all right but as the

"Take for instance the name of Mr. Harry "Take for instance the name of Mr. Harry Sharp. He says he has not expressed himself at all on the question and that he has studiously avoided doing so. Then again you will see on that list the names of men who do not live in Fulton county. Knowing that these gentlemen do not live here and have no vote, The Journal, in its desperation to beat me, quotes them. Is this fair? Is it not just as fair for them to hunt people up in New York or some other place who can't vote and quote them against me? Neither Mr. Felder nor Mr. Schubrick reside in the county and yet these men are used in the warfare the paper is making on me. Does that look right?

"Mr. Frank Potts, Jr, is quoted against me. Mr. Potts not only tells me that he never spoke to The Journal as to how he making on me. Does that look right?

"Mr. Frank Potts, Jr, is quoted against me. Mr. Potts not only tells me that he never spoke to The Journal as to how he would vote but assures me that he has no vote here because he has not been back long enough to vote. Is this square? Mr. John McCloud may vote the Barnes ticket but I'll bet he never told The Journal he would. Dr. J. W. Lee has been up in Madison attending to his church affairs and if I know him right I say that he ain't the man to drop his church work and go to writing letters down here that he is going to vote for or against any man. These are only a few of the long list. Had I time to see them all, I think I would find more who would repudiate the interviews.

"Then again, if you will study that list of names you will find that there are many gentlemen on there who are of some kin to some member of the Barnes ticket.

"No, give me a square whack and I''ll whip the fight. All I ask is for my friends to stand by me. I feel confident of winning this fight and if my friends will only come out today and stand up to me, I'll be sure to win the fight. I have every confidence that they will stand by me. I have no doubt as to the result but I want my friends to come out as they have promised and help me through.

A Card from Mr. Dodd.

Editor Constitution—Will you do me the kindness to present to the public an expression from me concerning the publication of an interview with me in this afternoon's Journal, in which I am quoted with a number of others, as favoring the Barnes ticket for sheriff. This is an outrageous piece of presumption and an unwarranted liberty with my name. I am in favor of Captain James W. Morrow for sheriff and think that he is entitled to re-election. Respectfully, GREEN T. DODD. A Card from Mr. Hill.

To the Public—I am quoted in an interview in this afternoon's Journal as being unequivocally and pronouncedly in favor of the Barnes ticket for sheriff. This does me a gross injustice. I have not been interviewed and the alleged expression attributed to me is entirely fabricated.

ended in a fight. Turner got the best of the fight, and did Brogdon up pretty badly. Brogdon was not seriously hurt however.

After the fighters were separated, Turner went to his cell and closed the door behind him. Jailer Mattox went in to punish the offenders by locking them in the dungeon. Turner rebelled and swore he would kill any one that tried to put him in the dungeon. Mr. Mattox went to the cell door and asked him to come out. Turner refused, and when Jailer Mattox opened the door and started in he sprang up with a big bottle in hand with which he threatened to strike the jailer if he came farther.

He was in the very act of throwing it when Jailer Mattox drew his pistol and told him to drop the bottle. Still the negro refused sullenly and said he would die first.

ATLANTA YESTERDAY,

And He Denies the Story That His Broth er Is a Thief-Will Maks a Fight

J. H. Hudnall, brother of the crook of that name, recently arrested in Chattanooga, for stealing diamonds, was in Atlanta yes terday. He came in on the 1 o'clock West ern and Atlantic train, and after spending a few 'moments with Chief of Detectives Wright, he went to his hotel. He returned to Chattanooga on the night train.

Mr. Andnall is a splendid looking gentle man, and appears to be a successful business men. When he called at Chief Wright's office and announced that he was a brother of the famous alleged king of dia-mond thieves, the chief of detectives was greatly surprised and was loath to believe the statement. He did not expect to find suca a solid looking gentleman terday, ready for trial.

In the afternoon after all had been settled, Hudnall arrived. He had a long talk with Chief Wright. He said that the diamonds were the property of his sister-in-law, and she would make a fight for them. Speaking of his brother he said that he was not a thief as he was reputed to be.

"He is a gambler," has brother sa d, "but he is not a thief. I do not think the highly sensational stories that have been printed about him are correct. I have had a great deal of unpleasant noteriety through the newspapers on account of the stories about my brother. They have done me no good in my business relations."

Mr. Hudnall is a citizen of New Orleaus, and is said to be a president of a railroad.

Mr. Hudnall is a citizen of New Orleans, and is said to be a president of a railroad. He says that he had a letter from his brother only a day or so ago. How he got out of the clutches of the Chattanooga officials has already been told by The Constitution. After his arrest he put up $10 as collateral to secure his appearance, and then left town. He has not been seen since. If his brother's statement is true he is not as black as he is painted. The outcome of the affair is awaited with interest. It now seems fikely that Mrs. Hudnall will make a fight for the possession of the Hill diamond. It was reported yesterday that she was in Atlanta, but if she was she did not make herself known.

A Visit to Mr. Isaac McLendon's Farm and a Taik with Him.

Carrollton, Ga., December 6.—(Special.)—
The farmers of Carroll county are taking an unusual interest in the raising of horses and mules. The Constitution correspondent had an interesting talk with Mr. Isaac N. McLendon, one of Carroll's best farmers, today, about stock raising. Mr. McLendon's farm is located about three miles from Carrollton, and for the past five years he has taken a great interest in raising horses and mules for the market, and he has made a great success. Mr. McLendon said he first commenced by preparing clover and grass patches and buying up brood mares. This was five years ago, and he has sold over $1,000 worth of mules this and last year, and has raised some that he is using on the farm for draught and plow mules. These mules are as large as any bought from Kentucky or Tennessee, and Mr. McClent don thinks they are much healthier. In all Mr. McLendon has raised over thirty head in the five years and he says he can beat making cotton. He has raised work stock entirely and he says he sees no reason why Georgia is not as good a country for raising mules and horses as any other state. Captain Joe Kingsbery, of Atlanta, has a Georgia is not as good a country for raising mules and increes as any other state.

Captain Joe Kingsbery, of Atlanta, has a beautiful stock farm located nearly in the incorporated limits of Carrollton. The name is "Oaklawn Stock Farm." and is familiar to lovers of fine horses all over Georgia. Captain Kingsbery sometimes has as many as seventy-five nead of fine horses on his farm, and he has sold some fine blooded colts, two of which brought $000 each at three months' old. Captain Kingsbery says big money can be made in stock raising. There is no man in Georgia that loves a fine horse better than Joe Kingsbery.

The residence on "Oaklawn" is the old home of non. Sanford Kingsbery, the venerable and nighly esteemed father of Messrs. Joe, Charles and Edward Kingsbery, of Atlanta, and is a quiet and beautiful place. It is admired by all who have the pleasure of a visit to the farm and the owner takes great pride in keeping it up.

Captain Kingsbery has made a superbrace track, where he has his horse trainers to train the fine bloods from Oaklawn.

Stockruising can be made successful in Georgia.

A BOLD ROBBERY.

The Brother of Hudnall, the Alieged A Man Held Up on Alabama Street in

REVOLVER DRAWN

He Takes a Watch from a Gentleman's Pooket, and Makes His Escape, Still Covering Him with His Gun.

A bold piece of highway robbery, daring nough to awaken pangs of jealousy in the breast of the most venturesome of Chicago highwaymen, was committed on the busies part of Alabama street in broad daylight yes terday afternoon about 4 o'clock. It would make a creditable addition to the lawless acts of such bandits as Rube Burrows or Jesse James. That such a bold thing could occur on one of the most promi-nent thoroughfares in the city seems in-

A young man standing in a stairway or Alabama street, approached by a bold ne-gro, who, drawing a pistol, takes his watch from the young man's pocket, and walks unconcernedly away—that in the broad glare of daylight, with scores of people passing along the street within call.

Only an Ordinary Negro. Mr. Julius Rowland is a young man well known in the city. He has lived here for years and is a familiar figure among Alabama street business men. He is in the employ of L. L. Abbott & Co., the wholesale meat brokers, and has been for a long

The office of his employers is in a suite of rooms at 66 1-2 East Alabama street. Yesterday afternoon about 4 o'clock Mr. Rowland left the office and started out on a business errand. At the head of the stairway he met a negro whose action seemed suspicious. Mr. Rowland had left no one in the office, and feering that the negro suspicious. Mr. Rowland had left no one in the office, and fearing that the negro was bent on robbery, he watched him for a minute. The negro walked about the hall in an aimless sort of fashion and turning the state of the sta hall in an aimless sort of fashion and turning back and seeing the young man regarding him curiously he walked rapidly back to where Mr. Rowland stood. "What are you doing up here?" the latter asked. "Do you want to see any one?" The negro walked up close to Mr. Rowland and said he was looking for a man who was working for Mr. T. S. Lewis. Mr. Rowland told him that no such person was to be found there, and he added: "You had better get out of here." "D—n you, get out yourself or I'll kill a noise and I will put a bullet hole through you."

The villainous negro kept the now thoroughly frightened gentleman covered with his pistol, and Mr. Rowland expected to be shot each moment. He had no weapon of his own, and if he had had one he would have had no opportunity of drawing it, as the black highwayman still held the gun threateningly before him. But only for a moment did the negro remain inactive. Coming still nearer to Mr. Rowland he said in approved highwayman style:

"Hand over that watch or I'll shoot you in your tracks." He did not wait for Mr. Rowland to comply with his imperious demand, but walking up to that gentleman he shoved his cocked revolver under his nose, and cooly took Mr. Rowland's handsome gold watch from his water pocket. He quickly pocketed the timepiece, and getting behind Mr. Rowland he started down the stairway, his pistol still drawn and pointing at the surprised gentleman he had just robbed in such a cool manner.

He walked backward down the stairway, holding his cocked revolver ready for instant use, and warning Mr. Rowland not to cry out on peril of his life. At the foot of the stairway he turned, and disappeared down the street. Mr. Rowland followed in haste, but when he reached the sidewalk the bold highwayman had lost himself in the crowd. He did not even know which way the robber had gone.

He went at once to the police station, and reported the bold piece of business. He described the robber as being a young negro of medium height, and very well dressed.

This bold robber is but one of a great number that are now operating in Atlanta. They are not all practicing highway robbery, however, but are burglarizing residences and business houses.

C. Staley's "A Royal Pass" Tonight.

George C. Staley's "A Royal Pass" Tonight.
George C. Staley is a well-known German dialect comedian, who comes south with a new play, of which the press everywhere gives the best accounts. He was in Charleston last week and the Charleston papers gave his the finest endorsements. The Charleston News said:
"George C. Staley, the famous German dialect comedian, was greeted by a fair audlence at the theater last night. His play, 'A Royal Pass,' is not only a thrilling, romantic and exciting comedy-drama, but is filled with scenic efforts which hold the audlence spell-bound during the entire performance. The scene which brings the engines upon the stage, causing a wonderful mechanical display, coupled with the excitement of the plot, beautifully woven, has a most exciting effect upon the audlence. Every character was represented by a careful and precise actor, while the star, in a most perfect and charming manner, amused the crowd and brought forth rounds of applause at every appearance" charming manner, amused the crowd and brought forth rounds of applause at every appearance"

Neil Burgess's "County Fair."

On Friday and Saturday, December 9th and 10th, with Saturday matinee, at DeGive's opera house, will appear Neil Burgess's company in "The County Fair."

It is not easy to say what is the most attractive feature about this unique dramatic composition. but probably it is its touch of yankee realism, in the old farm buildings, with a real cow eating real hay, a real horse nibbling real corn and a genuine old-fashioned husking, red ear and all. This is one of those plays where one can laugh from beginning to end and not feel ashamed of his hilarity. The wonderful adaptation of means to ends which enables the spectators to see a genuine race between five genuine borses ridden by five genuine jockeys and running genuinely as fast as their legs will carry them, is a triumph of mechanical genius not often witnessed. Any of our readers who have not seen the "County Fair" should not fail to go.

Do not suffer from sick headache a moment Neil Burgess's "County Fair." Do not suffer from sick headache a moment longer. It is not necessary. Carter's Little Liver Pills will cure you. Dose, one little pill. Small price. Small dose. Small pill.

TOBOCCO RAISING IN GEORGIA.

Tobocco Raising in Georgia.

Results That shows it is a Success/ul Crop
The Experimental Farm.

Waycross, Ga., December 6.—(Special.)—
The exepirmental tobacco farm near here was started last winter. It was made a stock company, composed of about twenty stockholders. Enterprising farmers and business men are at the head of the concern.
A lot of land was bought, and a superintendent was engaged to have the work done properly. About thirty acres were planted in tobacco. The spring season was dry, and there was some trouble in transplanting the plants. This caused a delay in getting a good stand. About this time, W. A. Paschal, an experienced tobacco grower from North Carolina, was engaged to superintend the farm. He put his experience and energy to work, and the young plants began to grow. The farm was soon green with the weed. Up to this time the scheme was looked upon with disfavor by the farmers generally. They would shake their heads, when asked their opinion of the enterprise.
But when the farm was covered with healthy growing tobacco, they would go over and watch the work going on. Their interest in the farm was increased with each new leaf that branched out from the stalk. They were pleased. But, when the plants reached maturity and the leaves began to ripen, a feeling of uneasiness came over them. "How was the tobacco to be cured?" was asked by every one. The superintendent erected suitable barns, and began to havest the crop.

The leaves were carried to the barn and filed on hooks for the purpose. When the barn was filled to its capacity, the furnaces were made hot to a certain temperature, and then the work of curing began.

The first barn of tobacco was cured successfully, and this was followed by others, even with better results. At last the entire crop was harvested and cured. The quality of the tobacco was pronounced by experts to be equal to the best Havanna fillers. A cigar factory was started here, and the tobacco raised on this farm is being used for making cigars. The cigar made from this leaf is of a superior grade. This farm will be conducted on an extensive plan next year. New land will be put under cultivation, and the best facilities for curing the weed will be secured.

Mr. Paschal will employ experienced laborers on the farm, and it is hoped that, with good seasons, the experiment next year will prove far more gratifying than this year's.

But the farmers are interested in this year will prove far more gratifying than this year's.

But the farmers are interested in this new industry. They are now convinced that tobacco culture in this section is a success. A prominent farmer, Mr. Strickland, says he is going to plant ten or fifteen acres next year. He will build a barn. His neighbors will plant some, and use a barn for curing their tobacco. In the upper part of the county the farmers will plant the weed extensively next year. They propose to form clubs and build barnes wherever they will be needed. This plan will help the farmers generally to engage in the growing of tobacco. There will be a large acreage of tobacco grown in this county next year. A movement is on foot to erect a plug-tobacco factory here. It is believed that this will be the banner tobacco country in the state, and Waycross will be the tobacco center of this section. A warehouse will be built during next year.

Editor Constitution—In the race for clerk of the superior court, which will be decided by the people today at the ballot box, it should not be forgotten that the credit for the fine condition of the clerk's office is due to Mr. George Forbes. His fine executive ability is what brought order out of chaos when he first went into that office and substituted therefor the orderly arrangement which exists today.

It is only fair, therefore, that the man to whom the credit is due should be rewarded by a term as principal in the office which he has raised to such a high standard. No man has worked harder than George Forbes for has worked induct than George Forces for the people, as will be attested by all who have ever met him officially. # ARE ALL WE GOULD

But They Are the Finest Ever Offered for Sale in Atlanta.

We have reference to the "Pronouncing Family Heirloom Bible," something new and entirely different from any Bible ever offered for sale in Atlanta. It was gotten out last fall by one of the largest Bible houses in the country, to meet the demands of a class that want a really elegant Bible. It has none of the trash and gaudy illustrations that are to be found in nearly every Family Bible offered for sale by other houses.

It is printed from a large, clear, open-faced type, one of the most beautiful ever put in a Bible, and the paper is the very nicest to be hadfar superior to anything to be found in the most costly Bibles of other houses, and it is illustrated with fifty magnificent full-page steel engravings, gotten out especially for this edition, that are worth what we ask for the Bible, and it contains such help as is desirable in a Bible like this.

One of the most attractive features of this Bible is the Family Records, which is arranged for ten generations. It is intended to be handed down from one generation to another for ten generations. This is something entirely new and not to be found in any other Bible.

As this Bible is intended to be handed down from one generation to another, it is, of course, bound in the best possible manner, in the very finest Levant Morocco. While the binding is perfectly plain, yet it makes the neatest Bible to be had. It is simply magnificent.

We cannot do the work justice in an advertisement. It must be seen to be appreciated, so we say by all means come and see it, or drop us a card and we will send one out to your office or house.

Now, it would seem that such a magnificent Bible as this is would find a ready sale in every city, but such has not been the case. The bookstores say it is too fine and expensive for their trade, and they can't afford to put money in them. The cost of getting out this edition is so great that the publishers cannot possibly sell them for less than $25 and $35. They say it is too fine a Bible for their trade and they are going to quit publishing them. They had a small stock left, and to close them out at once, they sold to us for less than it cost to bind them. We could get only twenty-two, but we are going to give twenty-two persons the biggest bargain they ever had. There are only two styles, and to close them out at once, we make the following with John to the other functions of the milench.

If. Roddenbury directed his remarks with to the point and concluded with a wir forcible speech in behalf of higher cheation and the colleges. It was a song spech and one that had the weight argument with it.

If was followed by Mr. Charters, of lampkin, who supplemented his speech of faurday with many fine arguments in favor of granting the donation to the Dahlera school. His arguments were siming assertable.

hera school. His arguments were siming unanswerable.

Then Mr. Hall, of Thomas, got the floor of spoke for a full half-hour ably and well for the appropriation, and appealed to the pride of the members as Georgians to in to the dignity and duty of the day and in these branch colleges on their feet again as remove the stigma from the name of deepa as being the most illiterate state in the union.

Mr. Howard Speaks.

Mr. Howard Speaks.

Following Mr. Hall, of Thomas, came Mr. Beard, of Baldwin, who made the best speech he has yet made in the house. He was strong believer in the branch colleges of the clearly and forcibly to this line of thought. He said the day had come the first state should throw off the demandary of the cloudy past and take her size with the other states of the union in the line of liberally appropriating money in the education of her boys. He spoke with much earnestness in favor of not only ballonega but all the branch colleges being reinstated as institutions of learning in the great name of Georgia. He was in the mist of a very admirable argument when Mr. Hill, of Meriwether, moved that the committee rise, report progress and ask lare to sit again. The motion, however, was lost and Mel Branch got the floor and said that an amendment be read. His mendment was of a peculiar nature. The amendment by the well-known third sted that an amendment be read. His usedment was of a peculiar nature. The amendment by the well-known third arty man was for the purpose of allowing hidosera the $2,000 asked for, but recing that it be taken from the landscrip and which the state has nothing to do with and which comes direct from the natual congress, and goes to the State university. This was a stab at the university. I showed a spirit of continuing the state the attitude of not giving the university spikel (which is absolutely and literally the and went further to show that the tard party man wants to take that money with the university gets outside the state but the tolege.

when this amendment of Mr. Branch used a prominent member of the house wed and asked rather pertinently:

Will they introduce a bill to touch the me to the university next?"

Mr. Rankin Again.

the Mel Branch had explained his measure.

Mr. Rankin, of Gordon, the leader of sposition to these institutions of higher than took the floor and made a speech the same line that he spoke the other consistion to these institutions of higher.

The said (and it caused a smile) that was not an enemy to the State universitate was proud of it as much as any the meribers, though it had never done to the was proud of it as much as any the meribers, though it had never done to the was proud of it as much as any the meribers, though it had never done to the was proud of it as much as any the meribers, though it had not been dead to the was against the areas we had a supported to the was against appropriating a nickel branch colleges.

The was against appropriating a nickel branch colleges.

The dead of Haralson, followed Rankin was the amendment to strike out the dollahonega. Then Ham, of Hall, the soor and began what was promised argument for the support of the He was cut short by the arrival adjournment hour, and by motion of Hall the house adjourned until 7:30 that anight.

The Ninth Section.

The Ninth Section.

When the session began last night Mr. Ham at Hall, took the floor and continued his abs argument for the appropriation of the base processary for the support of the Dallonega college. He was in no mood for Jahng gently with Mr. Rankin, of Gorlon, the acknowledged leader of the Martina, and roasted him with gloves off the thing and the state of the

he was not born and reared in the state of Virginia.

He replied that he was and that he was not ashamed of it.

He became spirited and said that his wife and children were Georgia born and that he was now as good a Georgian as the gentleman from Hall. "You mush' childe me on that score," said he finally, "for away back in my heart there is a fond memory for the old state of my nativity," and his voice was plaintive,

Mr. Branch made a splendid speech befriending the State university, forgetting, perhaps, that his very amendment was to take away from the college three thousand dollars of its money given it by the United States and turn it over to the college at Dahlonega. The members saw the point and smiled as Mel grew eloquent in praise of the university.

But the funniest hit of the night's session was when Styles, of Liberty, one of the colored members, asked for information of Mr. Branch if he was after taking money from the State university to give to the branch college at Dahlonega. The clerk gave the information in the affirmative, whereupon Mr. Styles, looking seriously, very seriously upon the statesman from the old republic of Columbia, said:

"Yi, yi, then you are seeking to rob Peter to pay Paul, are you?" and the house roared with immoderate laughter. Mel subsided and didn't speak any more at the night session.

There were many speeches made for and against the colleges, the arguments partaking of the nature of those that were advanced the morning before.

How They Voted.

The amendment to strike all the colleges from the list of appropriations including Dahlonega was defeated by a vote of ayes 42, nays 70.

Then the amendment by Boynton, of Calhoun, was taken up to appropriate $2,000 to all of the old branch colleges that there is no difference between the contracts of the state with these colleges than the one with Dahlonega and he hoped that the members would give all the colleges the money asked for in the amendment.

Against the Girls' College.

Rankin, of Gordon, of course, brought on a figh by the legislature if the senate concurs in the house's election.

Against the Girls' College.

Rankin, of Gordon, of course, brought on a fight when the next section of the bill was read and came up for action appropriating money to the Girls' Normal and Industrial college. What first caught his attention and arrested his disgust was the line appropriating $1,000 to put the grounds of this school in order.

Of course, he moved to strike it out immediately. He said that it was not his opinion of justice that the girls of this school should be allowed to walk through gravel walks and flower gardens when the other people of the state had weary paths that were rough and rocky to travel. He was down on the school anyhow and asked very many questions about it.

Mr. Atkinson explained that the money was wanted to smooth down the grounds which are the old penitentiary grounds and were found much in the same order as the convicts had left them. The amendment of the gentleman from Gordon was defeated by a rousing vote and the school will get the money to put the grounds in order.

Next came Tatum, of Dade, with an amendment to cut down the amount of the regular annual appropriation from $22,000 to $10,000 and asked Mr. Atkinson told that the money was for the sustenance of the school. He showed that every dollar of it was necessary. The amendment was defeated.

When Tatum, of Dade, also put an amendment to strike out the $11,000 named in it was necessary. The amendment was defeated.

When Tatum, of Dade, also put an amendment to strike out the $11,000 named in the bill for the school for part payment of the cost of building the school he again asked Mr. Atkinson to explain, which was granted. Mr. Atkinson showed that this money was not appropriated now, but was simply in the bill as a matter of form, it being a part of the original $33,000 offered by a previous session of the state legislature for the building of the school. Mr. Tatum was asked by the speaker if with this explanation he would withdraw his amendment. When he hesitated Mr. Atkinson said, "I don't beg you to withdraw it." Finally it was withdrawn.

Thus the house allows the Girls' Normal and Industrial college all that was asked for it by the committee and its friends.

More War on the Teck.

More War on the Teck.

No sooner had this been passed upon than the opponent of higher education, Mr. Rankin, of Gordon, went back to the Technological school which had been already passed over in the section and offered an amendment to reduce the appropriation to that institution from $22,500 to $10,000. This brought on more talk. Martin, of Fulton, made a strong speech defending the Teck, and was strong speech defending the Teck, and was followed by judge Hall who had the floor when the motion to report progress and ask leave to sit again prevailed and the house subsequently adjourned to meet this morning at 9:30 o'clock.

subsequently adjourned to meet this morning at 9:30 o'clock.

For a Summer Session.

The next session of the state legislature will be a summer session it begins to seem. The resolution by Fleming, of Richmond, to make it so passed the house yesterday by an overwhelming vote and will be sent to the senate immediately.

This is a very significant action on the part of the house, and will arrest the interest of all citizens of the state.

The recently adopted constitutional amendment requiring annual sessions of fifty days each, stipulated that these sessions should be held annually, beginning on the same day until the legislature saw fit to make a change in the time of meeting.

Here a nice point of law came up for settlement. The question came up in this shape: If the present session began the 26th of October how can the next one begin in the summer and conform to the letter of the law with regard to meeting on the same day of each succeeding year? In other words the next session will have to begin on the same day of the year that the present sesson began, and not until another term can the legislature change the date so that both of the annual sessions of that term can be held on the same day as is provided in the text of the recently adopted constitutional amendment. A number of the leading law-yers of the house are of the opinion that the action of the house in agreeing to have a summer session next year was hasty and ill advised.

Juage John I. Hall, of Spalding, is one summer session next year was has y and ill advised.

Juage John I. Hall, of Spalding, is one of the number who holds such an opinion. He says the change can be made at any time for the sessions to be held at a different time to that stipulated in the amendment to the constitution, but thinks that both the receiver of a term, according to the law, sessions of a term, according to the law must be on the same day of the same

Speaker Atkinson asked to be allowed speaker Atsinson assert to be an early the privilege of voting on the question, and said he did so for the reason that he wanted to be put on record as voting against the change for this very reason, that he thought it could not be done in strict conformity with the letter of the law in just the respect with the letter of the law in just the respect named above.

But with these differences the bill passed and so far as the house is concerned it stands pledeged to have a summer session next year. What the senate will do with the measure is not known, and will be awaited with great concern by those who raise the point of law mentioned above. The question is an interesting one.

IN THE SENATE. Starting at Work Early—A Fight on Railroad Bills Tonight.

Bills Tonight.

The senate went to work at 9 o'clock yesterday morning under a new rule. Its committees had turned out plenty to do. New bills were few in number but the general judiciary reported a big batch for consideration and the house sent over word that it had passed a long string of them. Senator Smith, of the thirty-fourth, opened the proceedings with a motion to reconsider the chaingang bill which was passed the day before. This was the bill giving county commissioners or the authorities controlling chaingangs the power to work them in other counties. Senator Smith's objection was that it might result in bringing convict labor in competition with free labor. His motion was tabled.

clude metal "knucks" in the category of weapons prohibited under the concealed class. Mr. Bryan, of Floyd, was the author of this bill which came ever from the house. The senate general judiciary reported the measure unfavorably. A page whispered in Senator Corput's ear and the Senator from Floyd who had been busily writing was on the floor in a moment and moved that the committee report be disagreed to. He said that the practice of carrying "knucks" is general in some communities and the weapons are dangerous and calculated to produce death. In fact there had been a killing in his county by "knucks" and he thought they ought to be classed with pistols.

Senator Jenkins replied that it was idle to try to put everything in the list that might produce death. Rocks and penknives and policemen's clubs are all dangerous, "and there is the razor, the Georgia razzer which figures in every festive gathering of our colored neighbors," Senator Jenkins observed drolly, "why not put it in?"

"I am just writing an amendment to include the razor," said Senator Pinson on the other side-of the chamber.

There was a little debate on the motion and it was put and lost and the bill was defeated.

Insane Letter Writers.

Insane Letter Writers.

Insane Letter Writers.

Senator Robbe got through a measure of considerable importance. It restricts the correspondence of lunatics at the state or private asylums. At the last term the assembly passed a bill letting down the bars, as it were, in respect to lunatics corresponding with parties on the outside of asylums. As a result there has been correspondence which should never have been seen by any one. Female inmates of good families written improper letters. The physicians of the state asylum say that the correspondence defeats their treatment. They do not go so much on medicinal treatment as in keeping the patients divided from the particular subject on which they are deranged. Their letter writing is generally on the line of what they are crazed about.

The present law is worded in a way which is considered as a reflection on the faculty of the state asylum.

The bill passed without opposition.

Treatment of Convicts.

Senator Hatcher's bill to put the county

Senator Hatcher's bill to put the county chaingang under the supervision of the principal keeper of the penitentiary, was passed by unanimous vote. This bill is intended to prevent county convicts from being abused and kept beyond their sentence on the gang. Governor Northen recommended legislation on this line in his message. To Collect Information.

Senator Robinson, of Rabum county, introduced a bill by unanimous consent to empower the governor to appoint an advisory board on geology. This board is authorized to appoint as many assistants to the state geologist as may be necessary. They are to make a thorough survey of the state and make a report on the beds of ores, the timber, the waterpowers, the soil, climate, productions and in fact all the resources. This information is to be kept on record in the state geologist's office.

Two Dead Bills.

Members of county boards of education

Members of county boards of education will not get a per diem this year or next. A bill to allow them pay for their services was killed in the senate. Another allowing them to hold two offices was also defeated. So on the whole it was not a good day for school commissioners.

mmissioners.

Against the Railroads.

Against the Railroads.

Major Bacon's bill prohibiting railroad stock to be rated by syndicates was recommitted. There is a great deal of opposition to this anti-railroad bill in the senate.

Today there will be a meeting of railroad presidents and managers in Atlanta, to discuss the legislation which is pending, and to outline a plan to defeat it.

Tonight, Colonel E. B. Stahlman, commissioner of the Southern Railroad and Steamship Association, will appear before the senate conmittee on railroads and make a speech against some of the pending bills. They are declared to be injurious to the public interest and misunderstood.

Tonight's meeting of the senate milroad committee will be interesting, especially if Colonel Stahlman speaks. Yesterday he was indisposed, but he hoped to be able to be present tonight.

University Trustees.

University Trustees. The senate went into executive session yesterday and confirmed five trustees of the State university, a county commissioner, judge and two directors of the Georgia Normal and Industrial college at Milledgeville.

Governor Northen had sent in the nominations the day before and they had gone over. The trustees of the State university and their terms are:

J. B. Cummings, of Augusta, tenth district, for eight years from August 23, 1891.
D. B. Hamilton, of Rome, seventh district, for eight years from August 23, 1893.
N. J. Hammond, of Atlanta, the state at large, for eight years from August 23, 1893.
Andrew Cobb. of Athens, for the unexpired term of four years from August 23, 1899, and for the full term of eight years from August 23, 1893. Judge Crovatt Reappointed

Judge Crovatt Reappointed.

Hon. A. J. Crovatt was confirmed as judge of the county court of Glynn.

Judge Alfred J. Crovatt served two terms as mayor of Brunswick, and in 1887 was appointed judge of the county court of Glynn. He was a progressive mayor, and under his administration the city made rapid strides. Many improvements were made. As judge he has been able and just, and the people of Glynn unanimously desire hisreappointment.

Directors of the Normal.

Directors of the Normal.
W. T. Atkinson and F. G. duBignon were confirmed as directors of the Georgia formal and industrial college for girls, at Milledgeville.

Widows' Pensions.

The senate finance committee took up the widows' pensions yesterday. There was a fight over the sum, $60. Several wanted to raise it to $72, but that was allowed to stand. Then there was a debate over the clause shutting out widows who are worth a homestead.

Senator Edwards for one said that he would like to see the money saved to tax-payers which is paid to wealthy widows who really do not need it, but he thought it was discrimination and unconstitutional. Others did not hold back on account of unconstitutional questions, but were opposed to it on general principles. And so the clause was marked out and as it now stands all widows are on the same footing. That is, rich and poor alike share in the pensions at $60 a year. Senator Jenkins groposed an amendment restricting the pensions to widows of Georgia soldiers or of men who enlisted in Georgia regiments. It is said that on the border of North Carolina 300 widows have moved over to take advantage of Georgia's liberality.

Legislative Notes.

Senator Humphries presided nearly all day while President Clay signed bills. They are coming to him slowly.

Ex-Senator Peter Meldrim, of Savannah, was on the floor yesterday.

THE NEW YORK MARKET. The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, December 6.—Money loaned 3 to 4 1-2. Closing rate 3, lowest 3. Exchange closed steady; posted rates 486 to 488 1-2 actual rates 485 1-4 for sixty days, and 487 3-4 to 488 for demand.

Governments closed steady, Currency sixes 105 bid; extended twos registered, 100 bid; fours coupon, 114 bid. Stocks were fairly active this morning, sales amounting to 141,191 shares. Nearly all the transactions were in Reading. New England, Whisky Trust, Sugar Trust, Illinois Central and Silver Certificates. The general railroad list was steady. The Whisky Trust and Sugar were weak especially the latter, which fell rapidly under liquidating sales from 107 1-2 to 106 1-2. The selling Sugar Trust this morning was due to the belief that the promised extra dividend would not be paid. The selling of Silver Certificates checked after midday on the discovery that a limited supply of certificates outstanding might make it awkward to cover shorts.

Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Circular.

Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Circular.

NEW YORK, December 6—The Liverpool market opened this morning unchanged at last night's prices. By half past 10 clock it had advanced 768-64d. Our cables say that the improvement was due to advices from this side that the anti-option bill was unlikely to pass. These advices being contradicted most of the improvement in Liverpool was was lost, and at the close prices were but 3-54d higher than yesterday. In response to the early improvement abroad our own market gained about 12 points on the opening, but the improvement was not held, and before 1 o'clock it had sold back to last night's figures. It has been a nervous and constantly narrowing speculation. There is an improvement was not held, and before I o'clock it had sold back to last night's figures. It has been a nervous and constantly narrowing speculation. There is an utier absence of any buying power except that which results from the covering of short contracts. Speculators, who must be the principal buyers at present, if the advance is to be maintained, fear to interest themselves lest the anti-option bill shall pass and their contracts shall be made illegal, and the consequence is that whenever any cotton is for sale it comes upon a market almost devoid of buying power. It is significant that The London Times has advised the English people to withhold from further buying of cotton co-incidentally with the intractions of the Georgia legislature to its congressmen to vote in favor of the anti-option bill. We are advised that the Havre authority, Mr. Pasche, in his circular of the 5th instant, says: "The cotton situation is strengthening dally, and that he considers the present reaction the last chance to buy cotton cheaply." A South Carolina correspondent telegraphs us that the legislature of that state will probably instruct its representatives in Washington to vote in favor of the anti-option bill as the Georgia legislature did. Receipts at New Orleans tomorrow are estimated at 15,000 to 17,000 bales, against 13,000 bales last year. The decline in silver, arising from the fear of a repeal of the Sherman law and the inaction of the Brussels conference, had an influence in the direction of lower prices. During the afternoon the market was quiet, improving slightly under the news of better demand for spot cotton in New Orleans. responding to the hope that, inasmuch as the senate had not as yet taken any action on the anti-option bill, it might perhaps not do so for several days to cloome. The close was steady at an advance of from $60 come to be come to b

Lehman Bros.' Cotton Letter.

By Private Wire to B. W. Martin, Manager.

NEW YORK, December 6—Liverpool this morning was 5g6-4id up, we here opening at an advance of about 11 points, Shortly afterwards Liverpool again declined about 2g3 points, and with some desire to realize on the part of holders values here declined about 10 points. Thereafter the market ruled very steady indeed, fluctuating within a radius of about 7gs points and closing within about 3 points of the opening quotations. There have been no new features worthy of any special reference. The anti-option bill is naturally a disquieting feature in the position, and there are all kinds of rumors and reports concerning this measure current. We doubt, however, that anything authentic has been wired, nor do we believe that buyers should be deterred from taking advantage of soft spots because of this factor. The receipts will prove to be the main influence to govern either an advance or a decline. The movement thus far this woek at the ports would indicate a weekly movement of about 280,000 bales, which is quite heavy. It is claimed, however, that the receipt and the ports would had thereafter the movement will be a small one. If this proves to be correct we believe that we are not far from bottom for the time beling, and accordingly incline to advocate buying on soft spots.

Lamson Bros. & Co.'s Grain Letter.

By Private Wits to B. W. Martin, Manager Chicago, December 6.—May wheat closes today at 78.3-8 sellers, or 1-4 lower than yesterday. During the early part of the session there was scarcely any trading, due principally to wire trouble, eastern markets being cut off. Liverpool reported 1-4 to 12d. lower. Receipts at Minneapolis and Duluth, 1,250 cars. Receipts at primary points have again reached the million notch. The strongest bear feature, however, was the weekly shifts from India, Baltic and sundry ports, amounting to about three and a quarter millions of bushels. English visible increased about eight hundred thousand; the amount on passage, about two hundred and fifty thousand. Figuring from the supply and demand standpoint, holders have had nothing to encourage them today. Lower grades of corn were depressed, owing to the supply of new, which was selling at about 37c. and in poor demand. The speculative interest in corn and oats seemed to be on the bear side. The market was almost entirely neglected except by a few small traders or scalpers. There was probably large realizing on January lard and park yesterday, and it was reported today there were some heavy settlements made in January lard. Receipts of hogs are on the icrease and quality improving. During the past week hog buyers and speculators have contracted a good many hogs fror the farmers for January delivery. This enables the farmers to continue to feed his hogs cheap corn and be assured of high prices in January, when he is ready to market them. Undqubtedly this has been one of the potent factors in keeping hogs back in the country.

For Commissioners.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for county commissioner, subject to democratic primary held December 7th.

J. M. LIDDELL.

To the Voters of Fulton County. I was elected as one of your county com-sioners by the grand jury. I accepted the office and was to have taken my seat at the next and was to have taken my seat at the next January meeting. Afterwards the legislature, by a new law, changed the system to and election of the people. I am advised that my present election is legal and valid, and that I can claim the office under it. But I think that election by the people the better system, and I shall ,for the sake of harmony, offer myself for re-election. I feel as if there was no just reason why I should be repudiated, and I make my appeal to the ballot box.

As is known to many of you, my election by the grand jury was without any solicitation from me, and arose largely from a general de-from me, and arose largely from a general de sire for a change in the policy of the count sire for a change in the policy of the county affairs.

I believe that every public road in the county should be put in first-class order and kept so, and new roads and streets opened only where in suburban or other localities the growth of improvements make it a matter of public benefit.

I am not a candidate for any locality or section, but the whole county, recognizing no dividing line; nor will I combine with another candidate for this or other office, or give any pledge to any one.

I shall favor the rebuilding or remodeling of the court house on the present site, and adjacent lot lately purchased; will favor the building of a new jail on a new lot, and will give my views on any general question to any voter, who, in good faith, may ask for the same.

I have no land that can be benefitted by voter, who, in good faith, may ask for the same.

I have no land that can be benefitted by county work, nor have I any friends who will ask me to favor them. I have no ends to serve but those of the public, and if any work be necessary for the public good, it will be a matter wholy indifferent to me whether it benefit friend or foe.

DEKALB POLITICS.

The Democracy of the County in Mass

RENOMINATES THE OLD OFFICERS.

New County Executive Committee. Dispersing a Crowd of Negroes. Notes of the Day. The democrats of DeKalb county met yes-erday in the courthouse, in Decatur, to ominate county officers, in mass meeting.

The courtnouse was densely packed with the iron-ribbed, sturdy democrats of old DeKalb. Thomas B. Felder was called to the chair and E. S. Steadman requested to act as secretary.

The following comprising the present county officers, were re-nominated:

Ordinary—W. M. Ragsdale. eriff-H. C. Austin. Clerk Superior Court-H. H. Burgess

Treasurer—J. A. Mason.
Tax Collector—I. N. Nash.
Tax Receiver—Irving L. Teat. Surveyor-F. L. Guess. Coroner-R. E. Jones. At one time there was some opposition in the field to several of the candidates. but it gradually disappeared and the nomwere unanimous Mr. B. F. George resigned as a member of the county executive committee, and Hon. R. W. Milner was elected in his place. The election of the executive comtee was then ratified from the election last June for two years. Captain Felder makes a capital presiding ficer, and the meeting by a unanimous rising vote, testified to their appreciation of him.

Major W. J. Houston yesterday related how quickly and effectively a crowd of noisy darkies were dispersed by the ingenious expedient of a gentleman annoyed by them. The negroes were shouting, cursing and shooting off pistols near north Decatur. This gentleman urged them to desist without avail. Not to be outdone, he quietly arranged a dynamite cartridge in a box and threw it over in the crowd. The explosion that followed resembled a minature earthquake. There was a sound of heavy footfalls, retreating in great disorder, and as the darkies had not returned at noon yesterday, it is presumed that they are still running. It Dispersed Them.

Speaking of Major Houston reminds me of the fact that he has proved a success at rearing squirrels. He turned several loose in a strip of woods near his barn several years ago and now has twenty-five or more squirrels that come to him when he goes into the woods and are quite tame.

Two of the old-time fox hunters in De-Kalb are Hon. M. A. Candler and Major W. J. Houston. They followed a fox from Decatur to Pinkneyville, twenty-five miles, before the war.

The citizens of Stone Mountain meet on day night to agree on a municipal ticket reference the ensuing year. The selection is confor the ensuing year. The selection is considered a very important one, as a number of enterprises are projected which will require wisdom, united action and tact to insure success. The State Agricultural society has been invited to meet there in Angust next to participate in the exercises stendant on the King monument. The names of Hon. J. W. McCurdy, J. A. Campbell and W. G. Scruggs are mentioned in connection with the mayoralty. On Saturday the 17th, the Dekalb county agricultural society will meet at 3 o'clock and discuss the King monument and the meeting of the State Agricultural society. To the Public.

A card in this afternoon's Journal, written, of course, simply for effect, and signed "Put Up," offers to bet $300 that the Barnes ticket will lead the next highest ticket 500 votes, and adds "money talks."

For the information of the public I will state that this is a gross bluff. I went to The Journal office as soon as I saw the paper and offered them $25 to even produce their man who would take up the bet with his money. The Workshop Starts Again and the Students few days, and the students will have plenty of work.

The workshop which was destroyed by fire this spring, although a great loss, has not hurt the school, but on the other hand has been a benefit. The new shop is better in many ways and the defects which were found in the old building have been avoided in the new one. The machinery also is much better and has been carefully selected. The present building is not quite so imposing a structure as the old one, yet it has been arranged with an eye to convenience and room and they will be able to do perfect work in every department.

Mr. Cassidy is superintendent of the workshop and has conscientions men in the different departments who have had years of experience in their different lines.

All the departments have been arranged better and have been given more space. Especially the foundry, which is as perfect as any in the south. The foreman in charge of this department takes great pride in his workers are the south.

The whole school from the very beginning has been of a higher order and is turning out men who are in demand in all parts of the world. It does any young man good to go to this school, no matter if he cannot complete the course, for he learns to work and acquires a good education besides, which will help him in every business.

Every county in the state should have a student at this institute and its advantages should be known, not only in Atlanta, but in the remotest towns of Georgia.

At the present there are over 125 students but there is room for more.

A few years back there were not many that knew what a technological school was, or if they knew they were not interested in such a school: but the people are finding out what our Georgia School of Technology is doing and not only the poor are taking advantage of its many benefits but the rich and fashionable young men are in attend-advantage of its many benefits but the rich and fashionable young men are in attendance and it is to be hoped that the time when the 137 counties of Georgia will have one or more young men in this great trade school will come.

The south under the new administration will begin to go ahead in all branches of trade; manufactories especially will pour into Georgia and the other southern states into Georgia and the other southern states, and the south will need such men as this school develops. There should not be anything left in the way that would impede this school's progress, and the legislature should do all in their power to provide for its needs.

The commissioners have done well in rebuilding and refitting the shops with such a small outlay and they are due much credit for their excellent management.

Fruit in Ware.

Fruit in Ware.

Waycross, G. December 6.—(Special.)—Editor D. B. Sweat, of this city, has bought a farm near here and has built a nice cottage on it. It is one of the best farms on the Air-Line railroad. Sixty acres are cleared. Twenty acres will be devoted to the culture of the scuppernong grape, while on the remaining forty acres will be grown every known variety of fruit. Mr. Sweat is a successful business man, and his opinions are worth the consideration of every one interested in the development of the natural resources of this section. He says that he is satisfied, from the gratifying results of experiments made here in grape and fruit culture, that in the near future this will be the largest grape and fruit-growing section in this state. Other gentlemen have spoken of going into the business of grape and fruit culture on a large scale. For several decades the principal variety of fruit grown here has been the pear. The farmers are now convinced that the grape, peach, plum and apple are more successfully grown here than they had ever dreamed of. On every farm tree, of almost every variety of fruit have been planted and the farmers are greatly interested in the subject. The supply of fruit next year will be abundant and a canning factory will be built. This will help to make the fruit-growing industry a success.

RAILROAD LAWS

Now Proposed for Enactment in the General Assembly.

SEVERAL OF THE BILLS CRITICISED

From the Railroad Builders' Side—Mr C. E. Smith Again Discusses the Diffi-culties of Bailroad Construction.

Major Bacon's proposed railroad legislation is arousing considerable interest.

An interview published a few days ago, with Colonel E. C. Smith, in opposition to these measures, has been followed by one from Major Bacon defending them.

Colonel Smith vestoring referring to the Colonel Smith yesterday referring to the matter said:

"I had the pleasure of expressing my opin

"I had the pleasure of expressing my opinion on one of Maj. Bacon's railroad bills through the columns of The Constitution the other day. It was in opposition to that section which required that 25 per cent of the capitol stock should be paid in before a company could organize. When the bill came before the house of representatives, the absurdity of the provision was so apparent that it was reduced to 15 per cent. But this is altogether too much and Major Bacon cannot name a railroad of one hundred miles in length which has been built dred miles in length which has been built in Georgia within the past ten years that could have complied with this requirement.

To stop mailroad Building.

"The question for the senate now is whether or not an act shall be passed which will stop railroad building in Georgia. I admit that all railroad enterprises are necessarily speculative in their character, be-cause they involve the investment of very essarily speculative in their character, because they involve the investment of very large sums of money, and investors naturally expect to make good profits. When people buy state or government bonds they know that they have bought absolutely safe securities and that the rate of interest will be very low?

"With new railroad bonds or stocks the case is altogether different. These securities are known to be of uncertain value, and purchasers will not buy them except at a heavy discount. It is stated, and no doubt true, that the Georgia, Southern and Florida and the Savannah, Americus and Montgomery railroads sold some of their bonds at '15 cents on the doflar. Major Bacon would say that this was a case of 25 per cent of water—$250 of water and $750 of money in a one thousand dollar bond. Admit, for the sake of argument, that this is true. The purchasers expected that these railroads would be prosperous and that in a few years each bond which cost them $750 would have a cash market value of $1,000. But the roads were not prosperous, and their bonds which cost the purchaser $750 can now be bought by the basket full at about $650. The Savannah, lAmericus and Montgomery bonds were quoted in yesterday's Constitution at 70.

"Now, somebody has lost heavily in this transaction, but it is not the people of Georgian. Georgians do not but new railroad bonds. These securities were sold, or hypothecated in large blocks to capitalists in the northern cities, who were willing to take heavy risks for the chance of making large profits."

Watering Railroad Stocks.

"Let us see how this case of 'watering'

Watering Railroad Stocks.

Watering Railroad Stocks.

"Let us see how this case of 'watering' railroad securities has effected the people of Georgia, bearing in mind the fact that neither road could have been built if the 'water' had not been put into the securities which they had for sale.

"Now for the results of this transaction: The whole southern half of Georgia has prospered as it never did before. Towns and cities have been built, churches, schools and colleges have been established and wild lands that were not saleable at 25 cents an acre are now in demand at from $2 to $4 per acre. In addition to this the state derives an immease revenue from taxes on the increased value of real estate and on the value of the railroads and their rolling stock. Can any one say that Georgia has suffered in either one of these cases? It is easy to see that the speculators get the worst of the trade, and that the state can well afford o allow railroad companies to build on any plan they like where the results are so greatly to her advantage.

"Now another fact in connection with the building of these roads is worthy of special notice. Major Bacon's bill would require that 15 per cert of the capital stock should be paid in before the organization of any company, and yet he must know that not 5 per cent of the capital stock of either one of these roads has ever been paid in at all, and never will be. It is safe to say that not a dollar of the capital stock has ever been roads.

How the Roads Were Built.

"When these companies were organized, they contracted with construction companies to build them, and agreed to pay these construction companies in bonds and stock to the amount of $12,000 per mile of each. The construction companies were contractors who took the risk of building these roads for large prospective profits, and whether they made or lost does not concern the public any more than the success or failure of any other contractors. Every road of any length that we have had built in Georgia for fifteen years past has been built on this plan, and every one without exception has been a speculative enterprise, where no part of the capital stock has been paid in, but on the contrary was expected to be a clear profit to the construction companies. In most of these cases, the companies which expected to make large profits have sustained heavy losses, yet it cannot be denied that the state has been benefited in a most wonderful degree.

be denied that the state has been benefited in a most wonderful degree.

"It is the merest buncombe to talk about 'protecting' the people of Georgia against these speculators, who have in fact proved to be wonderful benefactors. Instead of putting obstacles in their way the legislature should open wide the gates and invite everybody, far and near, to bring in their money and aid us in building up the waste places of our state."

Vote for George Porbes Today.

Editor Constitution—In the race for clerk of the superior court, which will be decided by the people today at the ballot box, it should not be forgotten that the credit for the fine condition of the clerk's office is due to Mr. George Forbes. His fine executive ability is what brought order out of chaos when he first went into that office and substituted therefor the orderly arrangement which exists today.

It is only fair, therefore, that the man to whom the credit is due should be rewarded by a term as principal in the office which he has raised to such a high standard. No man has worked harder than George Forbes for the people, as will be attested by all who have ever met him officially. He possesses every requisite, and the people will be untrue to themselves if they fail to elect George Forbes to the position of clerk of the superior court of Fulton county.

Let us honor ourselves by giving him the place he seeks. FULTON COUNTY.

From The St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The Halstead-Boynton war has broken out From The St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The Halstead-Boynton war has broken out again, as if purposely to enliven the post-election duliness. Would that we could say it had broken out in a fresh place; this, alas, is a novelty not to be expected. The lines of battle between these two beligerents were laid down a couple of years a go—when Mr. Halstead went east to grow up with the dormitories and write syndicate letters for the country papers—and they have been maintained ever since. A fair estimate of the progress of the contest is rendered impossible by radical differences of armament and methods on the part of the combatants. Boynton fights on Bucephalus; Halstead sails in on Pegasus. Boynton deals with the actual facts of war, while in Halstead we find a man with cerebral activities to which the facts of history are wholly inadequate. Halstead is a brilliant fournalists with forty years of active work beuind him, divided into two periods of equal length—twenty years of bold and picturesque assertion, followed by twenty years of ample and redundant retraction—one in whom the affuence of youthful averment has been fully propitated by the munificence of maturer disavowals. Boynton, on the other hand, has behind him simply a monotony of historic detail with nothing to recommend it but the vulgar virtue of truth. These being the conditions, it is easy to see why Halstead should shine out with the furid luster of the sun, while Boynton's light is mellowed as in the pale refulgence of the moon.
